FOUR ARRESTED IN WAR ON "BOOKIES"

Opening a campaign against "bookies" and betting on horses, Boston police today corralled four men, two in the Boylston street subway and two in front of the Hotel Brewster, on betting charges. The men arrested in the subway were John Garvey, thirty-five, of Crescent avenue, Beachmont, and Joseph Lynch, twenty-five, of Tolman street, Dorchester. In Boylston street were arrested Harry Rose of Holworthy street, Roxbury, and William L. Gibson of Brighton.

Senate Shackles Self to Join World Court At Bankers' Behest

The Senate which opposed Dawes' plan of senatorial subservience has adopted the principle of his proposal. The fact that the Senate has placed the shackles on itself does not lessen the effectiveness of the restraint or the menacing fact that shackles are likely to remain permanently on a body which voluntarily abandons its freedom and acknowledges its sympathy with the Dawes principle of repression.

Banker Dawes is not the presiding officer of the Senate by chance. It was the Senate which defeated the plan of the international bankers to further their foreign interests by putting the United States into the League of Nations. The whole policy of the recent national campaign therefore was to make the Senate safe for plutocracy.

Senator Lodge, able and politic Republican leader, friend of Roosevelt and a historic figure in the politics of the nation, was virtually read out of his party because he had the courage and the conscience to oppose the bankers' League of Nations' policy. He died broken hearted and Mr. Dawes was appointed by the international bankers to lead the cowed and herded Senators and bawl them into submission with the aid of radio, loud speakers and the editorial loud spouters of the reactionary press.

Then in the various States Senators were nominated generally on both Republican and Democratic tickets who were in favor of the bankers' League of Nations' policy and in order that nothing might interfere with the smooth and well-oiled running of the Republican machine at Washington, a weak Democratic candidate for President was named, who, in spite of his vacillation on other issues, was firmly committed to the League of Nations in defiance of the platform of his party which called for a referendum.

Of course the bankers' plan was successful. Money rules in this country today and we now have at Washington a government of bankers for bankers and in the interest of foreign investments.

The League of Nations is not a political issue, not a moral issue; it is a financial issue and the United States, in spite of the opposition of its people persistently expressed at the polls, is being thrown into the League of Nations to be exploited along with other nations and often, perhaps, for the benefit of other nations by the great international financiers.

Wilson's attempt to dominate the world for political reasons cost this country much. The present adventure to dominate the world for financial purposes may cost us more.

LINERS RUSH TO HELP CREWS IN PERIL UPON DISABLED FREIGHTERS

New York, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The lives of at least 60 seamen are in jeopardy today on two steamships battling against one of the worst storms ever encountered on the Atlantic Ocean.

The ships in distress are the British freighters Antinoe and Laristan, with twenty-five and thirty-five men aboard.

An unidentified vessel is also reported in trouble in the Panama Canal Zone.

Early today a wireless message was received from the steamship President Roosevelt, which had gone to the assistance of the Antinoe, saying the liner was standing by awaiting abatement of the heavy

WORLD COURT DEBATE IS OPENED IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 26.—So many senators insisted on talking today on the World Court as well as other subjects that pro-Court leaders gave up hope of reaching a final vote before tomorrow.

After half an hour had been spent in agreeing on the order in which reservations are to be considered, Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, took the floor for the full span of the hour permitted to him under the cloture rule adopted yesterday. He spent the time defending Woodrow Wilson from recent criticisms of

THREE GIRL COASTERS ARE BITTEN BY DOG

Three West Newton girls were bitten by a police dog while coasting on the golf links of the Albemarle Country Club, and as a result of a report to the police by the mother of one of them a dog owned by O. K. Smith of Waltham street, West Newton, will be examined for rabies.

The children are Dorothy Shea, ten, of No. 82 Randlett park; Winifred Walden, nine, of No. 104 Eliot avenue, and Elinore Cary, thirteen, of No. 789 Watertown street. All were bitten on their legs and doctors were called to cauterize the wounds.

After Mrs. Shea notified the authorities Dr. Boutelle, the Newton city veterinarian, was ordered to examine Smith's dog. The children said the dog was in the habit of chasing them down the hill as they coasted.

3 HURT IN ICE-HOUSE COLLAPSE; 2 MAY DIE

Plunging thirty feet when the run to an ice house collapsed in Natick today, three men were injured, two of them so seriously that they may die.

D. Decker, of Natick, is in the Morse Hospital, Natick, with a broken back.

Herbe McDonald, of Natick, who sustained internal injuries, is also at the Morse Hospital.

John Thomas of Natick was rushed to the Framingham Hospital where his injury was found to be a broken leg.

The three men were engaged in harvesting ice from Dug Pond on which Pond street and the ice house of John Hill border.

Heavy cakes of ice were being hauled up the run preparatory to being packed in the ice house when the long run snapped under the weight.

CONFER ON 'BRIBERY' STORIES AS CHELSEA BOOZE TRIAL STARTS

Headed by Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley and his brother, Police Inspector Thomas Quigley, of Chelsea, thrity-one defendants in the Chelsea liquor case lined up at the bar in Federal Court today and pleaded to indictment charges.

Each of the thirty-one was charged with conspiracy to defeat the national prohibition act.

Of the throng, thirty pleaded not guilty and one pleaded guilty. He was Samuel Herger of Chelsea.

One more man, Augustus Santini of New York, was to have stood trial today, making thirty-two defendants in all, but he defaulted.

The original number of forty-three defendants was depleted by nol prosses down to the present lineup, United States Attorney Harold P. Williams making the final cut at the eleventh hour, when he threw out the charges against Bella Barstein, Michael Kinney and Samuel Berlin.

Testifying in his own defense in Central District Court today, Caledonio Alviti, local agent of Charles Ponzi, denied ever selling any Florida land units in Boston.

Alviti took the stand after the government had rested its case without introducing any evidence of an actual sale although the defendant was charged with unlawful sale of securities.

"I remember telling someone," said Alviti, "that a man named Sullivan or Solomon or some similar name, who lived in Orient Heights, had bought some stock when he was in

GILLETT DEPLORES CHANGES

Senator Blease, Democrat, South Carolina.

Senator Gillett, Massachusetts, expressed regret that friends of the Court had seen fit greatly to modify the original Swanson resolution of adherence. He was followed by Senator Frazier, Republican, North Dakota, an opponent of adhesion.

As the discussion proceeded there were less than a dozen Senators in the chamber. The galleries remained crowded.

It took 35 minutes of bickering at the opening of today's session before the Senate agreed on the procedure to be followed in consideration of the various amendments and reservations.

The discussions came to an end when Senator Bruce, Maryland, asked for the third time whether the word "reservations" in the parliamentary agreement now in force was singular or plural, and Vice-President Dawes answered the word had an "s" on the end of it.

COOLIDGE APPREHENSIVE.

Earlier in the day President Coolidge expressed his fear that loading down the protocol with a multitude of reservations may surround America's adherence to the Court with so many encumbrances that much of the effect of the adherence will have been lost.

The impression was obtained that the President had specifically in mind that reservation which permits the Senate and not the executive to determine whether a given case of international dispute shall be put before the Court adjudication. Such restrictive reservations Mr. Coolidge believes may tend to make impracticable American operation in the Court.

FINAL PROTEST.

By agreement the revised Swanson plan, containing eight major reservations was taken up first, subject to amendment by the addition of reservations proposed by the little band of Irreconcilables. The agreement also provided that, once the Swanson plan is adopted, votes will be taken upon the proposal of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, to substitute the Pepper plan, entirely divorcing the Court from the League of Nations and the substitute plan of Senator Williams, of Missouri, to reorganize the Court.

Before entering the agreement the Irreconcilables made a final protest against consideration of the Court resolution in the absence of "any official treaty." Senator Reed of Missouri characterized the proceedings as "illegal, void, contrary to the Federal constitution and contrary to the rules of the Senate."

The first reservation was that proposed by Senator Swanson, providing that American adherence will not involve "any legal relations on the part of the United States to the League of Nations or the assumption of any obligations by the United States under the Treaty of Versailles."

The Irreconcilables won a new convert when Senator Robinson, Republican, of Indiana, announced he would vote against the court.

ANTIS WIN ROBINSON.

"I believe the United States should never accept any obligation under the covenant of the League of Nations," said Robinson. "The question is whether we assume any obligation under the league when we sign the protocol of this court. My answer is yes.

"It seems to me that if I vote to go into the Court, I violate my party's platform, which declares against assuming any obligations under the League. I I vote against the Court, it seems to me I carry out my party's platform pledge."

SURRENDERS IN COURT TO BURY HIS MOTHER

Harold Coughlin of Roxbury gave himself up in Suffolk Superior Court today that his mother's bankbook, pledged for his appearance, might be released so the undertaker could be paid and his mother buried. Some time ago Harold was found guilty of drunkenness and assault and battery in Roxbury court. He appealed, and his mother gave her bankbook for about $300 as surety. Two days ago the mother died and the family lacked funds to bury her. After his surrender today Harold, on recommendation of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, was released by Judge Fosdick, in charge of a probation officer, to attend the mother's funeral.

PEERESSES ON LINERS THAT BATTLE TOWARD U. S. IN WORST STORM OF YEARS

Duchess of Norfolk, who is one of the notables aboard the Leviathan bound for New York with her daughter to visit for several weeks.

Here's how big liners look in heavy seas such as they are now encountering in the worst storm of many years on the Atlantic. There are twelve overdue at New York, including the huge Leviathan and the Aquitania. Two other ships are in distress in mid-ocean with crews of 60 men in peril.

cene and an opportunity to take off the men.

Two men of the President Roosevelt were lost during an effort to rescue the crew.

The Antinoe and Laristan were located approximately in mid-Atlantic. The last word from the Laristan states that the North German Lloyd steamship Bremen had answered its SOS call.

No word had come today to J. H. Winchester & Company of this city, operators of the Laristan, but officials of the company declared that the information that the vessel's radio was silent indicated that the wireless room had been flooded. The master of the Laristan is Captain F. Littledale.

Besides the three vessels in distress, including the one in the Canal Zone, there are twelve big liners battling toward this port from Europe with nearly 5,000 passengers aboard. Among the twelve are the Leviathan and the Aquitania. The other ten are the Caledonia, Columbus, Duilio, Edam, France, Guiseppe Verdi, Kiltana, Montroyal, Transylvania and Zeeland.

Identity of a vessel in distress in the Canal Zone was sought today. She was first thought to be the Corvus, en route from Portland, Ore., to New York, but the Corvus was reported safe in port at San Francisco.

The Leviathan reported yesterday that all aboard were well but that she was making only 3 knots an hour in tremendous seas. Among her 1,122 passengers are the Duchess of Norfolk, her daughter, and Sophie Tucker, the actress. Miss Tucker was racing home to reach the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Jennie Abuza of Hartford, Conn., who died Sunday.

Lady Isabel Howard, wife of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, is aboard the Aquitania.

Two houses in Saxton street are plunged in gloom as a result of the death, for Miller lives with his family at No. 40 Saxton street, while the widow and child of Pappaladolupos lives at No. 58.

An early morning brawl in which Pappaladolupos was engaging with his wife caused the trouble, according to police. A warrant charging him with assault on Patrolman Miller and drunkenness was issued and was to have been served when he died at City Hospital.

MITCHELL CASE PROBE URGED IN CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Investigation of the Mitchell court-martial case, with a view to revising the law concerning military courts, was proposed today in a resolution by Representative Connally, Democrat, Texas.

Mr. Reed's charge of "unseeming haste" was answered by the White House today in a statement that President Coolidge had acted only only after several days of conferences with Secretary Davis of the War Department.

It was said the paper in the case reached the President at noon last Saturday. Prior to that time Mr. Coolidge had talked over some features of the situation with the war secretary.

Mitchell Plans to Quit Army if Coolidge Agrees

Washington, Jan. 26 (I.N.S.)—Colonel William Mitchell's resignation from the army is expected within forty-eight hours.

This, his friends say today, will be his answer to President Coolidge's action in approving the five years' suspension from the service, imposed by the court-martial that convicted him of being "defiant to his superiors" and "bringing discredit upon the military service."

Little doubt was expressed in any quarter today but that Mitchell's resignation will be speedily accepted by the War Department, and by the White House with the same alacrity with which the five years' suspension was approved.

The Colonel himself has nothing to say about his punishment.

COSTS HIM $150 TO SELL LIQUOR TO THE POLICE

He conducts a store at No. 32 West Broadway. Judge Logan told the police to bring in the owner of the property as the prohibition laws are being violated too frequently at this particular store. Sincavich paid the fine.

Jacksonville, but I did not say it was sold in Boston."

Willard F. Hirst, a Boston newspaper man, testified Alviti told him he had made a sale of a unit to a man named Sullivan of Orient Heights.

The first witness was Kenneth B. Backman of No. 114 Larch road, Cambridge, who said he is manager of the Boston Better Business Commission, Inc.

Backman testified he told Alviti he had previously purchased units in Florida and was looking forward to dividends. He quoted Alviti as saying it was too early to expect dividends. Alviti also stated, according to the witness, that the land purchased in Florida for $20 an acre was worth $200 an acre.

The witness said he inquired as to making more purchases, and testified Alviti gave him circulars describing Rosa Maria tract, also a subscription blank and an order blank. He testified Alviti told him to endorse the blanks and send the money to Florida. The witness said he purchased three units.

PICK LEWIS GOLDBERG FOR PUBLIC UTILITIES BOARD

Assistant Attorney-General Lewis Goldberg of Boston, it was learned today on good authority, will be named by Governor Fuller to succeed David A. Ellis as a Public Utilities Commissioner. A salary of $7,000 a year goes with the position. Ellis resigned because the work of the department had increased to such an extent that he could no longer attend to his private practice.

'CABARET BENT' LED DOCTOR TO CHOKE GIRL

Philadelphia, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—A "cabaret complex" that caused quarrels between them led him to strangle Miss Anna May Dietrich, thirty-four-year-old milliner, David L. Marshall, Philadelphia chiropractor, has confessed.

Miss Dietrich's headless and legless body was found in a field at Media. Marshall has admitted killing her and then dismembering her body.

Marshall, a friend of Miss Dietrich's for several years, married, and the father of a twelve-year-old daughter, made a second confession after he had steadfastly denied the murder, in which he declared that he strangled her to death after an argument which followed an attempt to extort money from him.

Today, Marshall, over whom police worked for nearly twenty-four hours to obtain the confession, was held without bail on a charge of murder.

"I'M LYING! I KILLED HER!"

Marshall's first confession, of having dismembered the body after the girl's suicide, did not ring true, officers felt, particularly that part wherein he said the girl drank poison because a wealthy New Yorker with whom she was in love had jilted her.

Throughout the long grilling that ensued Marshall reiterated time after time that he did not murder the girl. Then, as police were prepared to question him further, he sighed a moment, his tired and drawn face suddenly flashed a crimson red, and he cried out, almost hysterically.

"I'm lying! It's all lies! I'll tell the truth now!"

Then followed the second confession, more sensational than the first, in which he told of strangling Miss Dietrich to death because she had threatened to inform his wife of their relations unless he gave her more money.

He said:

"Recently she got a cabaret complex. She wanted to go out skylarking at nights. She began taking lessons in the Charleston. She wanted to be taken to the roadhouses and to cabarets. She threatened to tell my wife about our relations if I didn't take her out.

'Not Wanted'

John T. Hawes rejected for Fire Commissioner by the Civil Service Board.

LOSES 'PRAYING HUSBAND'

Marjorie M. Cox of West Roxbury was today granted a decree nisi from her "praying husband," Paul W. Cox, by Judge Dolan in Suffolk Divorce Court.

The wife testified that her husband continually questioned her as to her life and made unjust accusations about her friendships with other men. He told her that he could tell "by the glassy stare in her eyes when she was untrue to him."

The husband, on the witness stand, said that when his wife left him on occasions after he had questioned her he would go to church and pray every morning that she would return.

He said: "Circumstances tore us apart several times, but prayer brought us together again."

Mrs. Cox said that her husband accused her of turning their home into "a den of iniquity," and the husband admitted that he had shoved her out of bed three times.

BOARD REJECTS HAWES AS NEW FIRE HEAD

Mayor Nichols' appointment of John T. Hawes as fire commissioner was flatly rejected by the State Civil Service Commission.

Fire Commissioner Glynn's resignation, handed in some time ago, was officially accepted and Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan was made acting commissioner.

Political surprises came in a bunch today at City Hall.

Eight men were fired from the assessing department by Mayor Nichols cleaning out all holders of the rank of second assistant assessors.

The first woman assistant assessor was named, in the person of Mrs. Julia Lyons Mullen, a mother of five children, who lives at No. 15 Bailey street, Ashmont, and Charles P. Norton was appointed a park commissioner by the Mayor.

Mayor Nichols was plainly perturbed over the rejection by the Civil Service Commissioners of his appointment of Hawes. As is their custom, the commissioners did not state the reason for the rejection.

Mrs. Mullen assumes the role of second assistant assessor at the new salary basis of $4 a day when she works, this method of payment having been inaugurated by Mayor Nichols in place of the former flat rate of $1,200 a year. She begins her duties immediately by work on automobile assessments and checking up on applications for abatement of taxes.

Some more of the places made vacant by the discharging of the eight men today and six of their fellow-workers a week ago will be filled, and political sharps at the hall professed to see in the Mayor's action an effort to reward fellow Republicans for election campaign services.

The notices of discharge came to the men from the Board of Assessors but they were admittedly inspired by the Mayor. The men discharged are Frank A. Gafney, James J. Gallagher, John M. McDonald, John A. Reagan, Albert Soosman, Maurice J. Walsh, George O. Wood and Roy W. Connaughton.

"HACKER" AS HE BREAKS IN "THIRD DEGREE," HIS HOME AND GIRL HE KILLED

I WAS LYING I'LL TELL THE TRUTH NOW

David L. Marshall and his inquisitors just at the moment his cool air broke and he confessed to murdering Miss Anna May Dietrich in a rage over money and hacking up her body. Left to right, stenographer taking down confession; Marshall; W. B. McClenahan, assistant prosecutor, and District Attorney William Taylor.

Marshall's magnificent home at Baywood, Pa., near where the girl's head was found wrapped in old newspapers. In this house the police found a partly burned blood-stained carpet. Marshall is a wealthy chiropractor. All photos by International Newsreel.

This is David L. Marshall as he appeared just before his dramatic confession.

Anna May Dietrich, who wanted a "gay, butterfly life," who wanted to know all the new dances so she and Marshall could "do" the night life cabarets. He choked her, then hacked off her head and legs.

GLORIFIED BY FIRST NIGHT OF OPERA

Society and Notables of State and City Out in Full Force

By PAUL WHELTON

Into an area of arias—a city of Cantatas—Boston stands transformed today; metropolis of the Muse of Music, with its first night of grand opera sung.

It was the annual tranformation, this first night, and the high lights of the city, and points afar, descended upon the Boston Opera House to glint and glisten as only society can do on the opening night of the opera season.

If, somewhere across the sea, the wraith and spirit of an ancient bard, victim of the Reign of Terror, stirred in the dank and damp of its mausoleum, naught could there have been in the hidden motion except gratefulness in the homage paid; for the first nighters flocked to hear sung the story of Andrea Chenier, the poet.

CONDITIONS PERFECT.

A more overwhelming acclaim even than that of last year did the brilliant audience, massed in the huge auditorium and banked in the gem-studded horseshoe, accord the Chicago Civic Opera Company in its first showing of the season.

Not at all a gathering for show was it, but an assembly for the opera in itself and the constant pleas for encores that could not be given, bore this out in testimony.

Perfect underfoot and overhead, clear and brisk and exhilarating, it was a night of nights for the premiere.

It was a night of silks and things, of sleezy stuffs and laces, soft, clinging fabrics that soaked the glare of the lights; fabrics metallic, giving off a sheen; of blues and aquamarines and flame and pink in bewildering, kaleidoscopic array.

ORDER IN CONFUSION.

A night of tinkling laughter in the hum of the promenade where tiny, golden-slippered feet clicked rhythmically in the brief walks between the acts that must be taken to be in the show.

Night of shouts from without, at arrival and departure, of churning motors and glistening paint that gave off reflections; of slamming doors and exhortations called; of order in confusion, while the wide-eyed and the men and women of art and music watched to and from their way to the gallery doors where sit the real critics in majority.

Endlessly the cars rolled up, disgorged their cargoes of gorgeously-gowned beauty and the escorts in white against black, and rolled away again.

Endlessly, when the night waned, they rolled up again, received their passengers, and moved silently away over the ice that patched the pavement.

THRONGS MORE BRILLIANT.

The top layer of the Hub, the capitals in the blue book, the most renowned flourishes in the social register, were abroad for the opera and the lights were bright for the lights that came to rival their incandescence.

Dignitaries there were, familiar faces and subjects of excited

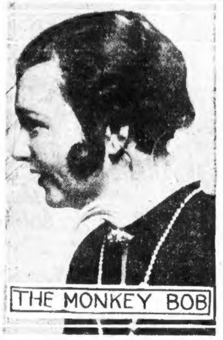
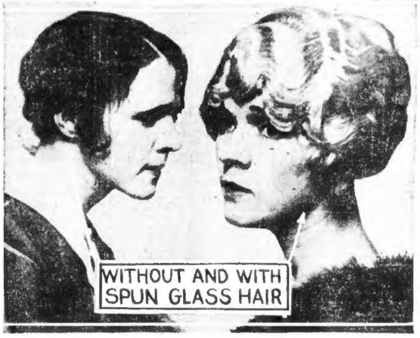
WOMAN'S HAIR IS HER GLORY WHEN 'DONE' AS DICTATED BY DAME FASHION



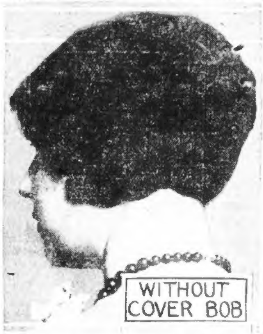
The "monkey bob" as worn by Alice Elwell, is taboo according to the Ladies' Hair Dressers' Association, now in session here. Other freakish styles are under the ban.



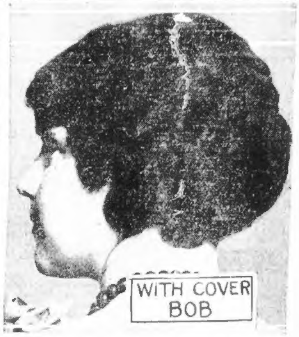
WITHOUT AND WITH SPUN GLASS HAIR

Here we see Betty McCarthy with her hair dressed au naturel, its ebon color unrelieved except by the wave prescribed by conventional style.

And here she is again, almost a different person and rendered interestingly attractive by the embellishment of "spun glass" treatment with an artistic wave arrangement.



Irene Coderre illustrates the daylight mode of wearing bobbed hair and which is eminently correct as an informal method of hirsute adornment and convenience during the workaday hours.



But at night when dinner and formal affairs call for a more elaborate treatment Irene Coderre is shown adapting herself to conditions by adorning herself with the "cover bob" which gives the similitude of long hair.

MACRI GIRL SPURNS CONCERT CAREER

Stirred by the story of Olympia Macri's father, that his unwed daughter, who slew the father of her child, had never had a chance for a musical education, Mrs. Joseph W. Whitney arranged a meeting with Walter Damrosch. Opportunity for training as a concert singer was provided, but Olympia failed to keep the engagement.

B. & M. BLOWUP PLOTTER RULED SANE; GETS JAIL

Salem, Jan. 26.—Charles A. Ward, charged with trying to blow up a Boston & Maine train at Lynn by placing explosives on the rails, should not be committed to the insane hospital at Bridgewater, Judge Lourie ruled today in Superior Court.

The sentence of Ward to Bridgewater was revoked by the court and Ward, instead, was sent to the State Prison for not less than seven nor more than nine years.

A second indictment, charging Ward with the unlawful possession of explosives, was placed on file.

2 ADRIFT FOR 13 DAYS LAND IN HUB SAFELY

Charles Smith of Milton and Frank Mitchell of Gloucester came into Boston today in the White Star liner Regina after one of the most venturesome trips ever made out of Gloucester. They set sail December 8 and landed in Gibraltar more than a month later.

And all they went out for, according to Smith, was just a little trip. So as to land they swore, before an American consul in England, they were American citizens, born in this country.

Smith said they left Gloucester with twelve sandwiches. That same day their engine failed twenty-five miles off Thatchers Island. In the open thirty-foot motorboat [illegible] they drifted aimlessly, once or twice sighting a sail, but never able to make the other fellow see them.

According to Smith, a schooner, the Montclair, rammed their bow and her anchor split the deck of the small boat. Then, he claimed, she sailed off, the captain waving a good-bye as he went. The shipping register shows a schooner Montclair sailing from Bridgewater, N. S., for Miami, Fla., on December 16.

Smith and Mitchell were for five days without food or water. Bit by bit they burned their surplus clothing for flares when sail was sighted. They were about ready to quit on December 21 and accept the inevitable when the British steamer New by Hall was sighted.

Captain Edge saw the small boat in distress and though in hard straits himself, the seas having driven him well off his course, he put over a boat and made the rescue about 410 miles off the Massachusetts Coast. The castaways were taken aboard and made comfortable. At Gibraltar they were put ashore.

They paid their passage from Gibraltar to England, where again there was a consul who offered no financial aid, so they had to pay their passage back to the United States.

AVERS LOAFING JOBS COST LYNN $1,000 A DAY

The job of being Mayor of Lynn isn't a bed of roses by any means, Mayor Ralph S. Bauer today told the legislative committee on cities.

"I have been attacked ever since I removed 179 men from the payrolls who were kept there for political purposes at a cost of $1,000 a day to the city," he declared. "I was elected to clear out the gang and I am going to do it."

He charged that civil service, under which the men were appointed, was apparently designed "to keep political loafers at work when they ought to have been fired and kicked in the slats."

He advocated a bill to abolish the Lynn board of license commission of three and transfer the board's powers to the aMyor and City Council. It is part of his economy plan to put Lynn on its feet "financially and politically."

He declared the law creating the licensing board was passed in 1921, after the advent of prohibition, and was adopted to "make jobs for three and to spend public funds."

"WHEN'S A MAN DRUNK?" GOODWIN QUOTES A JUDGE

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin quoted a famous ruling of former Judge Dewey in opposing a bill heard today by the legislative Committee on Legal Affairs. "He is drunk who falls on the floor and cannot rise no more," the registrar quoted. It is such rulings as this that make it difficult for him to determine, even after a person has been found not guilty of drunkenness by a court, whether the man was under the influence of liquor, Goodwin declared. The bill which met his disapproval was filed by Representative Patrick J. Sullivan of Boston. If enacted, Goodwin would be compelled to return a license to a person accused of reckless or similar forms of driving in the event the court found him not guilty.

Too Attentive

Peeved by the constant attentions of Lord Furness, her suitor, Thelma Morgan Converse, twin sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, now in Paris, says she wishes he would cease. She is embarrassed by frequent denials she is engaged to him.

15 FAIL IN NEW BAR 'EXAMS'

All but fifteen candidates for admission to the Massachusetts bar passed the second examination held as the result of charges of fraud in the first set, according to announcement made today by Hollis R. Bailey, chairman of the board of bar examiners. The fifteen who failed in the second test were successful in the first.

The report of Chairman Bailey shows 304 successful candidates, including young men and women. Petitions of six aliens were held in abeyance until they obtain final papers of citizenship. Results of an examination given for the first time to another class of candidates on January 2 are not included in the report.

Results of an examination held last July were voided by charges of fraud.

'MYSTERY MAN' HELD IN DEATH OF WOMAN

Benjamin M. Bond of No. 83 Bayside avenue, Somerville, was arrested today as "the mystery man" who called on Mrs. Clara Rosen, later found dead in her apartment in East Boston, and believed to have been the victim of foul play.

The man works in Watertown as a laborer and was taken by Sergeant James Lewis of the East Boston division after a search of three days.

Neighbors told of "the Watertown man" who was a frequent caller, and some of them said they had seen him leave the house shortly before Mrs. Rosen's body was found.

The police decided the woman had been killed in a desperate fight, and as a result, four East Boston men were arrested on suspicion. Questioning brought about the release of three of them. Those released were Francis Beaumont, William Flynn and Gustave D'Orsio, and the one held is Peter Ransom.

Although Medical Examiner McGrath has performed an autopsy, he has not satisfied himself as to the actual cause of the woman's death.

Following his autopsy, Dr. McGrath said: "I have further inquiry to make into the nature of the wound that caused Mrs. Rosen's death and the manner in which it was inflicted."

JAZZ OPERA COMPOSER TO MEET BOSTON MAYOR

The man who revolutionized opera and swept Chicago off its feet with his brain-child, "The Light of St. Agnes," was greeted in his native town today. He is Frank Harling, who makes his home at No. 280 Brookline avenue, Brookline. He arrived from Connecticut with his wife, Mrs. Lugarda Harling, after a concert before the Women's Clubs of Greenwich. He is working on another "Jazz Opera." He has an appointment to meet Mayor Nichols tomorrow forenoon.

HAIR REVEALS IDENTITY OF CRIMINALS

A machine that "reads" the hair may eventually replace the Bertillon system of detecting criminals by thumb finger prints, according to Arthur Druiff, scientist of New York City, who today is lecturing at Horticultural Hall at the sixth annual demonstration of the Ladies' Hair-Dressers' Association.

The thickness, porosity and elasticity of every person's hair differs to such an extent that it is possible to identify a person by comparison of a single hair with any or all in the head, the lecturer told his hearers. The machine is used to test hair for permanent waving.

This new invention, according to Druiff, is known as the "meter scale." It is quite complicated and the process of hair testing requires considerable training. The testing of samples is partly chemical and wholly physical and sometimes requires from three to four tests for proper results, he said.

The annual show has revealed a well-organized movement against the so-called "monkey-cuts" and other freakish styles of hairdressing. Unless this onslaught of style ceases, declared an exhibitor, the charms and beauty of American girlhood will not be preserved.

AWARDS FOR ESSAYS ON 'OLD IRONSIDES'

The 125,000 of the Boston public schools are to have their "Old Ironsides" Day.

Within a few days, an outline of the competitive essays for the gold, silver and bronze medals donated by Commander Marion Eppley will be placed before them.

On Friday, February 19, in connection with a joint celebration of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, the history of the gallant ship in the War of 1812 will be made a feature of the program in more than 350 schools.

Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah E. Burke and James R. Flanagan, Esq., representing Boston Lodge No. 10 of the Benevolent Order of Elks, will sit down together tomorrow to draw up the program.

The day agreed upon is the same that already has been selected by the authorities of the Catholic church as "Old Ironsides Day" in the parochial schools.

Superintendent Burke and Chairman Flanagan will co-operate at the result of a formal vote by the Boston School Committee.

The vote was unanimous. Chairman Frederick L. Bogan, M. D., Edward M. Sullivan, Esq., Mr. William G. O'Hare, Francis L. Gray, Esq., and Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron agreeing that the call of the gallant old fighting ship, which was built in Boston [illegible] years ago, which sailed out of Boston to put an end to the robbery of American merchantmen and the enslavery of Americans by the Barbary Corsairs, and which later in the War of 1812 struck terror to the heart of the foe and laid down the law of Freedom of the Seas, was a call that Boston and Bostonians cannot and will not deny.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, U. S. N., chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Save Old Ironsides Fund, declared when informed of the action of the Boston School Committee that it would "raise the spirits of the 'Old Ironsides' workers from coast to coast, and cheer the heart of every man in the navy."

"I am particularly pleased," Admiral Andrews said at the Charlestown Navy Yard to a reporter for the Boston Evening American, "that Boston is first among the large cities of America to invite this [illegible] into the schools.

"From the very beginning, Boston has been a Navy town and we of the Navy have formed the habit of depending upon her friendship. This action of the School Committee will have a profound effect upon the country.

"I [illegible] 125,000 Boston school children to take part in the 'Old Ironsides' essay competition and I am glad to extend [illegible] through the columns of the Evening American, an invitation to visit the Navy Yard at [illegible] opportunity and [illegible]."

The school committee took up Secretary of the Navy Wilbur's letter, asking the co-operation of the [illegible] schools, at the regular weekly conference.

MAKE APPEAL.

There was no public meeting but the committee received a delegation consisting of Lieutenant Commander Admiral Andrews; former Collector of Internal Revenue John F. Malley, ranking Grand Lodge officer of the Elks in this jurisdiction and personal representative of Past Grand Exalted Ruler James R. Nicholson; Exalted Ruler Daniel J. Kane, of Boston lodge; Chairman James R. Flanagan of the Elks "Old Ironsides" Committee, and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

"What we urge upon this committee," former Senator Malley said, "and I would respectfully emphasize that the Elks have taken upon the campaign as a public duty and at the call of the secretary of the navy, is a movement to make the teaching of history and patriotism more interesting.

"As Secretary Wilbur so well says in his letter on the subject, 'Old Ironsides' is of no value except as an historical monument, and of no value as a monument unless the American people take an interest in her. With the secretary of the navy we believe this to be a practical way in which to interest the children. The subjects of the essays they will be asked to write in competition have been designated by President Coolidge."

PROMISE CO-OPERATION.

Commander Brandt reviewed the campaign from its inception. Exalted Ruler Kane spoke of the readiness of Boston Elks to co-operate with the school authorities in carrying out the wishes of the President and the secretary of the navy, and Chairman Flanagan of the local "Old Ironsides" committee promised to send into each of the more than 350 Boston schools on "Old Ironsides Day" a Boston Elk of more than local fame as an orator.

"It was my proud privilege in [illegible]," former Mayor Fitzgerald said, "to represent in Congress the district in which is located the wharf where this famous old frigate was built and launched. In grateful memory of her untarnished record it is called Constitution Wharf to this day.

"I have the pleasantest recollections of playing, as a boy, about the wharf where the Constitution was built more than a century and a quarter ago, and when I stand here pleading for the preservation of 'Old Ironsides' my deepest sympathies are moved. She

Lauds Boston Evening American for Its Patriotic Service

By EDWARD M. SULLIVAN,
Member of the Boston School Committee.

NOW that the vote has been taken and it has been decided that the children of Boston are to have a part in the nation-wide competition for the Eppley medals, and in contributing towards the reconstruction of the frigate Constitution, I feel that someone connected with the schools should say a word of thanks to the Boston Evening American, for awakening public interest in the cause.

The informal vote of last year was taken, I am sure, under a misapprehension of the situation. The facts which stand out today are that the decision to turn to the young people of the country for a large part of the necessary $500,000 was not made because Uncle Sam was "hard up," but rather because this was felt to be a certain method of arousing interest in our great Navy and its wonderful history.

The Elks, it now is plain, undertook to carry the campaign into the schools at the urging of the Secretary of the Navy. The President himself is so keenly interested in the campaign, we see, that it was he who selected the subjects of the competitive essays.

It has been pointed out that the Constitution is the only ship that has served under every President from Washington to Coolidge, and it is peculiarly fitting that her glorious achievements should be commemorated on the day when the schools celebrate the natal days of the greatest of our Presidents.

EDWARD M. SULLIVAN

I rejoice, especially, that the vote of our Committee on this, to me, very important question was a unanimous one. I have a feeling that the public opinion of the city is quite as unanimous; for, as the Boston Evening American has pointed out, "Old Ironsides" is one of us.

Perhaps, at the close of this preliminary campaign, I can make public confession of the fears which have beset me, at times, in the past week.

Ever since our meeting of a week ago I have been fearful that some fine morning I was going to read in the newspapers a dispatch from California, announcing that the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco had wired an offer to Secretary Wilbur to take and rebuild "Old Ironsides" on condition that she be towed to the Golden Gate and set up out there, to remain forever an inspiration to the youth of the Pacific.

Thanks to our New England good luck, the Californians did not happen to think of it! But what a fine old Town meeting spirit would have been aroused in Boston, if they had. Instead of celebrating "Old Ironsides" in the schools, we would be holding indignation meetings in Faneuil Hall and on the Common, and wiring to our representatives in Washington, even to the White House, demanding Boston's right to the possession of BOSTON'S "Old Ironsides."

IRISH GENERAL TO SPEAK IN HUB SUNDAY

By JAMES WALSH.

General Frank Aiken, former chief of staff of the Irish Republican army, will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting next Sunday night under the auspices of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic in Symphony Hall.

General Aiken came to this country to fill speaking engagements. He declares that "Americans are now getting a taste of the kind of British trickery to which the Irish people have been subjected for the last 700 years."

Referring to the abnormal price of rubber, which, he says, was brought about by the British government's control of the rubber output of the world, he declared:

"It is obvious that when the British Commission made the famous debt settlement, they made it with their tongues in their cheeks. They must have known well enough what was to happen or they never would have agreed to the payments Great Britain undertook. Americans have since had it dinned into them by British propaganda that the British are of a superior honesty because they, at least, are paying their debts, while the Latins try to avoid paying theirs.

"The truth is that the British debt is now being paid, not by the Britons but by Americans themselves. This is easily seen. The annual payments on the British debt amount are [illegible]. The annual tribute gouged from the American automobile owners is about [illegible] a year, which in seven years will pay off the debt."

President Joseph Magennis of the Central Council of Irish County Clubs and a degree staff installed the officers of the County Kildare Association in Hibernian Hall, Dudley street. The officers are: James J. Fennelly, president; Joseph Flanagan, vice-president; Edward Morris, recording secretary; Mrs. Annie Hanneh, financial secretary; Dennis J. Carroll, treasurer; Miss Marjorie Morris, corresponding secretary; Patrick Shea, sergeant-at-arms; Martin J. O'Brien, sentinel.

The following officers of the County Tipperary Association were installed by President Magennis:

John J. Murray, president; M. G. Moloney, vice-president; Timothy Wyse, secretary; Miss Helen Tynan, financial secretary; Valentine Ryan, treasurer; John J. Foley, sergeant-at-arms; Richard Walsh, sentinel.

Many prominent speakers addressed the Michael Davitt Council, A. A. R. I. R., in Paine Memorial Hall, South End. President Michael J. O'Dea urged the members to continue their work for the Irish cause.

One of the features of the Gaelic class of the Washington Pearse Council, A. A. R. I. R., which will meet Friday evening in Teachers' College, will be a discussion in Gaelic of Irish traditional music. Sena Nolan, Dublin violinist, and Sean McEnri, both former members of the Irish Republican Army, have been admitted as members of the council. The next regular meeting will be held on Friday evening, Feb. 5. The following committee has been appointed to prepare a lecture to be given early next month.

Dr. James T. Gallagher, Miss Monica Foley, Miss Mary A. Crowley, Mrs. Patrick Harrington, Miss K. T. Brennan, Miss Helen Donahue, Miss Josephine Ahern, Miss Mary Donovan, Miss Shea, and Miss Margaret I. Connolly.

god. Human victims would have had their breasts cut open, with a knife or sharp stone, and their hearts held up, bleeding, toward the angry god to pacify him.

We don't yet understand all about volcanoes, but at least we know that no god or devil uses them to show his anger.

A JOINT LEGISLATIVE committee planning to modify the Volstead act at this session will probably not succeed, and prohibition will stay in the Constitution until those now in the cradle are old. A determined prohibition minority would not allow a change in the Volstead law, even assuming that a majority really wants to change it.

D. L. SHARP offers, apart from virtue and morality, the best argument in favor of Volstead. He says men were not ready for prohibition, but the times and modern machinery were ready, and made prohibition necessary.

"High among the white-piled clouds above the house and the tree tops roars an airplane from Boston for New York. That pilot isn't drunk. No matter what the bibulous habits of his father might have been, this child of the sky, driving like Icarus, but unscorched by the sun, needs no tingling drop of alcohol to fire his courage or to steady his nerve."

That's brilliant writing in spite of the fact, proved in the World War, that fliers between flights were often hard drinkers.

"Machinery must be dry, so must be the people who run it, those who repair it and those who build it," is Mr. Sharp's conclusion.

MILWAUKEE supplies an account of miraculous exorcism, believed by many, deeply religious, to have been the actual driving out of a devil from the body of an unfortunate insane woman.

The account of the miracle runs as follows: A woman whose mind had become unbalanced was carried to the chapel of St. Joseph's Hospital, where the "exorcism ritual" was performed, in Latin, not understood by the patient.

The question, "Who are you?" was answered, apparently from the throat of the woman in a deep, masculine voice, "BEELZEBUB." Asked why he had taken possession of the woman Beelzebub replied: "BECAUSE OF MALEDICTION."

The fiend promised to leave the woman at 2 o'clock that afternoon, but did not actually leave until half past five, which is about what you would expect of a demon. The woman then relaxed and is getting better.

THIS MIRACLE, not as yet vouched for by church authorities, was an every day occurrence in the Middle Ages, when demons were more active, numerous and efficient than at present.

It is romantic, refreshing and interesting to have one of them resume business at the old stand in these days of radios, automobiles and newspapers. It is said, however, that the voice of Milwaukee's Beelzebub indicated irritation and a feeling that times are not what they were, in the good old days.

CONGRESSMAN BERGER, of Wisconsin, introduces a resolution asking President Coolidge to rebuke Mussolini for harsh Fascist methods in dealing with certain religious, political, Masonic and trade union organizations.

Mr. Berger, one of the best educated men in Congress, knows that wise governments mind their own business, and allow other governments to do likewise.

President Coolidge also knows that "no man ever got poor minding his own business," and will not tell Mussolini how to run Italy.

THE GREEK GOVERNMENT raises money so simply as to justify the Russian saying, "An Armenian is as smart as two Jews, a Greek as smart as four Armenians."

Greece cuts 25 per cent. from the redemption value of all bank notes in circulation. It is as though you read tomorrow morning that hereafter your twenty dollar bill would be worth only fifteen dollars, and redeemed at that price by the government.

Thus, swiftly and surely, Greece makes a forced loan of one billion and a quarter of drachmas with no possibility of dodging that tax.

SENTENCED FOR ROW OVER SISTER-IN-LAW

Samuel Sagonsky, found guilty today in Municipal Court of assault and battery on his wife, Esther, of Bowdoin street, Dorchester, and his sister-in-law Mollie Silverman, was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction. He appealed. When his wife made a remark as he was going out through the corridor, Samuel swung and missed. Court officers quieted him. Samuel, according to evidence was enjoying a bounteous meal when a row over his sister-in-law occurred. When she refused to leave, he hurled a glass of water at his wife and then struck his sister-in-law, according to testimony.

ASKS COURT TO STOP BUS LINE TO TAUNTON

A petition for a temporary injunction to restrain David Abbott of Providence, R. I., from operating a bus line in Taunton, was filed in Federal District Court today by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company. Abbott's bus line runs between Brockton and Taunton, passing through Easton, Raynham and East Bridgewater. The street railway alleges the bus line parallels its tracks and is illegally operated.

REVERE LEADS IN STATE AUTO FATALITIES

Springfield Has the Fewest in 1925, Says Goodwin; Boston Ranks 12th

Revere had the most automobile fatalities in proportion to population and Springfield had the fewest in 1925 according to figures made public today by Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of motor vehicles.

Boston is twelfth on the list of over [illegible] population [illegible] auto [illegible] for the year.

Eleven persons lost their lives in [illegible] of auto mishaps in Revere during the past year, while in Springfield, which has a much larger population, only seven were killed.

Springfield's remarkable record, Registrar Goodwin said, is due to the activity of the Safety Council. Last year twenty-four were killed.

Figures recently given out in Washington do not fairly compare the cities of Massachusetts, Mr. Goodwin said, because the figures were compiled from the number of people who died in cities. As many people are injured in rural sections and taken to city hospitals, the Washington figures increase the toll of many cities, Mr. Goodwin said.

Somerville was rated with Norfolk, Va., as first among the low deaths class by the Federal figures but is rated as thirteenth in the State by Mr. Goodwin.

Registrar Goodwin's summary follows:

"JACK" HARDING, FLIGHT HERO, TO SPEAK HERE

"Jack" Harding, one of the six Americans whose names will go down through the ages as the first to fly around the world, tells his wonderful story to Bostonians, Thursday evening at Symphony Hall, for the benefit of the Emerson College Fund. Harding is the man who rode in the "New Orleans" with Eric Nelson when the Magellans of the air coasted down into Boston for their official welcome back to "the States." His story is that of a Columbus and a Peary combined, spiced with an account of the voyagers' battles with Arctic blizzards, tropical monsoons and the blistering heat of a Persian desert. Harding is a native of the South. With his address he combines several thousand feet of film and many still pictures.

I HAVEN'T HEARD ANY CALL TO DINNER!

SUMMONSED IN STRIKE CLASH

Following a hearing before Judge Parmenter in Central District Court, summonses were issued today for Anthony Jenkins, general organizer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, and Louis Kalis, raincoat manufacturer, of No. 1025 Washington street.

The hearing was the result of a clash when Jenkins claims he was attacked with an iron bar by Kalis while doing picket duty outside the latter's shop during the raincoat workers' strike.

Kalis at the hearing denied the attack, contending that Jenkins attempted to force his way into the shop, and sustained the marks on his wrists when the proprietor tried to close the door.

While the court proceedings were going on, Samuel Zorn, business manager of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, was conferring with the Commonwealth Clothing Company, where 90 workers are out. Zorn stated he expected to reach an agreement with the company tomorrow, and will then confer with the Royal Clothing Company and the Kingston Clothing Company.

LITTLE NORTH STATION WANDERER HIDES NAME

A four-year-old boy, with his face and hands scarred as the result of a fall, was found today roaming about North station and turned over to the Travellers' Aid Society. He refused to tell his name or his home, but said that he came on a train from Lawrence shortly after noon. Lawrence police have no reports of a missing child. He is dressed in a grey flannel blouse with a blue collar, blue trousers, brown socks, a dark brown belted overcoat and a red and blue knitted cap. Police are endeavoring to locate the boys' relatives.

Americans to Bid for Czar's $50,000 Dinner Service

Leningrad, Russia, Jan. 26, (A.P.)—Americans who cannot afford to buy any of the Russian Imperial crown jewels are to be given an opportunity by the Soviet Government to purchase the former Czar's sumptuous 500-piece dinner service, made of the finest rock crystal.

This set was used only when royalty were the guests.

It cost $50,000, but is now offered at a fraction of that sum. The smallest wineglass in the set is valued at $15.

SPENCER TOWN HALL BURNED

Spencer, Jan. 26.—Fire today destroyed the Town Hall with all its contents, including valuable historic records, and threatened the entire centre of the town, help being summoned from Worcester to prevent the flames from spreading. Fire officials estimated the loss at $25,000.

The work of a firebug is suspected by the authorities because of fires last Saturday in East Brookfield, adjoining Spencer, and on Monday in West Brookfield.

Mrs. Julia Waters, a telephone operator, helped to prevent a general conflagration today, when she gave the alarm and awoke all the available volunteer fire-fighters.

10 FLEE BROOKLINE FIRE AS SMOKE FILLS HOUSE

Ten persons fled from fire today in the four-story brick block at No. 1055 Beacon street, Brookline, where rubbish in the basement became ignited from hot ashes. The building quickly filled with smoke, endangering the lives of the occupants and hampering firemen. Damage was estimated at $1,000. In another Brookline fire the plant-potting house on the Robert Treat Paine estate, No. 525 Heath street, was destroyed with $2,000 loss.

ADMITS HE'S A STAR BURGLAR

Brighton police claim to have arrested the champion "admitter" in Joseph F. Shields, twenty-eight, of Brighton avenue, who, they say, has not only admitted several thefts, but on a tour with officers pointed out houses he had entered and pawnshops where he [illegible] on stolen goods.

Eleven cases of breaking and entering with theft of fur coats, jewelry and money, mostly in apartments in Brighton, Allston and Brookline, are laid to Shields in police charges.

Shields is charged with robbing the apartment of William Dorney, No. 1334 Commonwealth avenue, of a raccoon coat and jewelry, police later recovering the suit; the apartment of Frank Demento, No. 47 [illegible] street, where a watch, gold pieces and jewelry were stolen; the homes of Samuel Maguire and Mrs. John Kennedy at No. 12 Maple avenue; of Israel Novak, No. 5 Verndale avenue, Brookline, and those at No. 74 Verndale avenue and at No. 45 Norfolk street, Dorchester.

PINCHOT CHARGES TWO OFFICIALS GOT $200,000

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Charges that two former state treasurers, Charles A. Snyder and Harmon M. Kephart, each borrowed more than $100,000 from State banking institutions without adequate security were made by Governor Pinchot today in a letter sent to the House and Senate Banking Committees at a public hearing on pending banking legislation.

TRAIL IN SNOW LEADS TO CACHE OF LIQUOR

Found—Two one-gallon jugs of first-class whiskey and one five-gallon can of high proof alcohol. Owner may have same by calling at the Revere police station.

To the trained mind of Officer John Dooley, fresh tracks in the snow at the end of Endicott avenue, Beachmont, meant something so he followed the trail to the rear of an unoccupied cottage. There in a rear porch he found the liquor cache.

SUBWAY 'KING' IN BOSTON

Patrick McGovern of New York, who 35 years ago worked as a paver for $1.75 a day in Boston, became a contractor and built parts of Boston, New York and Philadelphia subways, is back in Boston, called by the critical illness of an old time friend.

Mr. McGovern, who when in Boston lived in a modest apartment, today is occupying a three room suite at the Copley-Plaza, waiting word of the progress J. T. O'Connell, cement contractor, is making against serious illness.

It was in Somerville that Mr. McGovern branched out into the business that won him millions and fame as one of the greatest contractors in America and king of subway builders.

In 1924 he was awarded the $14,300,000 contract for a rapid transit system in Philadelphia.

His company constructed the Dorchester tunnel, and for eight years Mr. McGovern was engaged in litigation with the City of Boston. He received an award of $[illegible]000 in a suit for $250,000 additional compensation, but the decision was reversed.

LAMSON & HUBBARD STOCK CASES SETTLED

Thirty-five cases against the Lamson & Hubbard Corporation of Boston involving some $25,000, were settled out of court today, judgment being entered for "neither party." The cases were all of investors who had bought stock in the Lamson & Hubbard Company, Ltd., under the understanding that this stock could be transferred for stock in the Lamson & Hubbard Corporation of Boston.

But after these investors had bought the stock in the Canadian company the Supreme Court ruled [illegible] transferred [illegible] in the Canadian [illegible] would not be transferred for stock in the local corporation. This [illegible] the suits which were settled out of court today.

DR. TOWER, SCIENTIST, IS DEAD OF PNEUMONIA

Providence, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Dr. Ralph Winfred Tower, curator of comparative physiology of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, died today of pneumonia in New Rochelle, N. Y., according to advices received at Brown University of which he was a graduate in the class of 1892 and a former instructor.

Dr. Tower was born in Amherst, Mass., May 24, 1870. In 1900 he was named John Ware Memorial fellow at Harvard. He leaves a widow, one son, Laurence W. Tower, and a sister, Miss Ethel Tower of Providence.

HUSBAND HUNTS JOB AS SUICIDE WIFE RECOVERS

Thomas Kelly of West Sixth street, South Boston, plodded [illegible] streets today, hoping once again [illegible] to exercise his "right to work" and to feed his wife and children and keep them warm.

Meanwhile his wife is at City Hospital recovering from the effects of poison that she took when her two small children [illegible] a mother's [illegible] the intent [illegible] her memory, the sound of them [illegible] and [illegible] for food.

The young wife [illegible] only [illegible] revealed the circumstances the family was in when she recovered at the hospital. Her husband was out of work, unable to obtain more, and the last [illegible] had gone for a bag of coal, which was also soon exhausted, leaving the chill of Winter to creep into the house.

35-MILE AUTO SPEED LIMIT PLAN OPPOSED

A maximum speed [illegible] of thirty-five miles an hour, proposed by Representative Jas. B. [illegible] of [illegible], met with still opposition today at a hearing before the legislative committee on highways and motor vehicles. [illegible] Commissioner of Public Works William F. Williams contended the present law meets the situation with [illegible] persons operating under varying conditions. He declared it [illegible] under some conditions [illegible] miles an hour, while [illegible] might [illegible] safe on a straight stretch with [illegible] traffic.

COURT CLASH OVER LAWSON 'PHONE SPY'

[illegible], Jan. 26.—Warm words [illegible] today in the [illegible] battle [illegible] by the two trustees [illegible] Thomas W. Lawson [illegible] official approval of [illegible]-Dreamwold [illegible].

[illegible] under cross-examination [illegible] Douglas Lawson, one of the [illegible] two sons who oppose [illegible] declared that in plan[illegible] he followed [illegible] following his [illegible] believed the [illegible] to be [illegible].

The [illegible] was centered about telephone conversations Douglas had last Summer with William Barton, trustee with Horace T. Fogg.

Douglas Lawson admitted that during the conversations he had a stenographer on an extension phone taking the talk down verbatim.

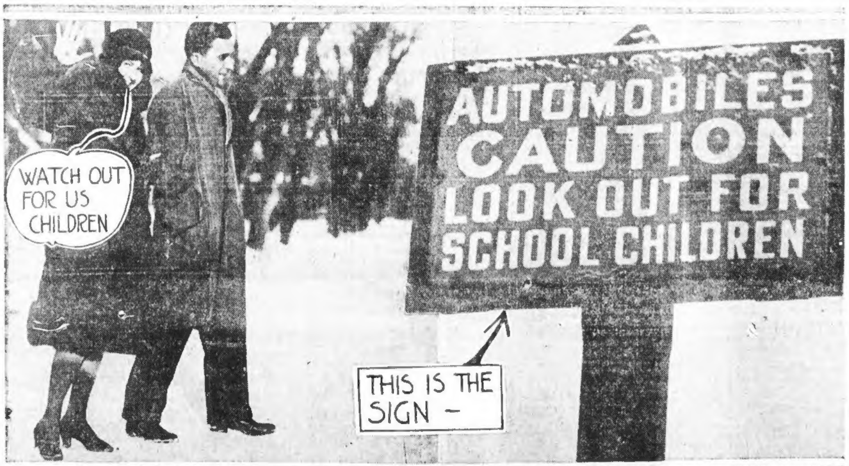
"Don't you consider that a despicable [illegible] to plant a spy on the [illegible]," asked Attorney [illegible].

"I [illegible]," Douglas returned [illegible]. "I stationed [illegible] followed the procedure [illegible] transactions where I [illegible] the person with whom I [illegible] of dishonesty."

The telephone conversations in question were relative to the sale of Dreamwold Hall, the manor house of the late "Copper King's" Egypt showplace.

Arnold Lawson, now living with his family in "The Nest," the old retreat of his father at Dreamwold, said he opposed the sale of Dreamwold Hall for commercial purposes in general, while Douglas stated that he was positively opposed to its use as an inn by a prospective purchaser.

RADCLIFFE HAS ANOTHER LAUGH ON HARVARD



WATCH OUT FOR US CHILDREN
AUTOMOBILES CAUTION LOOK OUT FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN
THIS IS THE SIGN –

Here's Radcliffe's latest laugh on Harvard. The sign above, warning autoists to be careful of children, was erected by the Cambridge Street Department near the Harvard buildings. None was placed near Radcliffe so the girls there are chuckling over the joke at the students' expense. Above is Alice Cotler, a Radcliffe girl, leading her friend, Morey Artey, a student, across the street.

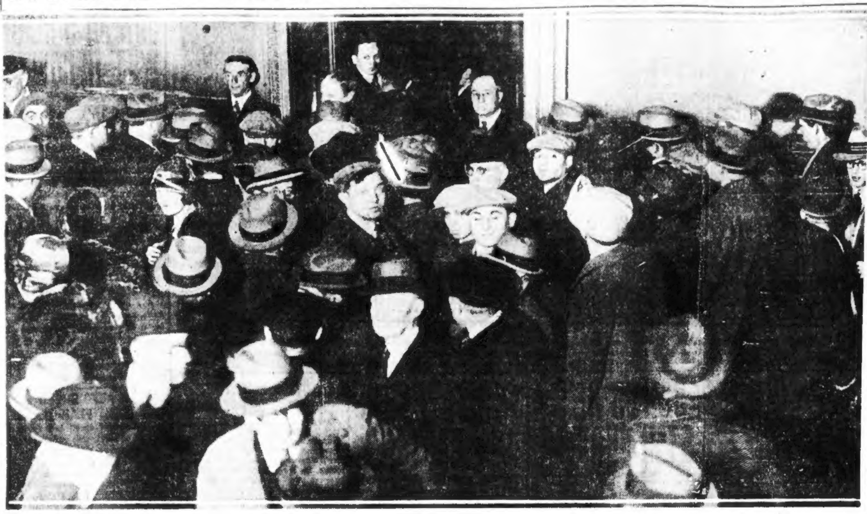
STORMING COURTROOM DOORS AT CHELSEA RUM TRIAL



View of the big crowd that swarmed into Federal Building today as Mayor Quigley and 43 others went on trial in the so-called Chelsea "rum union" case. The courtroom was quickly filled and scores were barred out by court officers. The defendants were represented by a powerful array of counsel, and scores of witnesses were on hand to testify. Start of the trial was delayed by a conference on "bribe" stories which have gained circulation in the past few days.

SAT WITH HIRED MAN, AND SHE KISSED HIM

Testifying in her own defense in Middlesex Probate court, Mrs. Clara Pass, attractive mother of seven children, admitted today she occasionally sat on the bed of Morris Jacobson, or Jackson, a man of all work at her home, while he was on the bed.

The woman, whose husband, Max Pass, wealthy Malden contractor is seeking a divorce naming Jacobson, said the choreman sat on her bed at times and she saw nothing wrong in either practice.

Jacobson, she declared, scrubbed floors, helped with the cooking, washed dishes, waited on table, ironed flat work, washed clothes, prepared the breakfast for her and her husband, and fed the children.

NEIGHBOR SAW KISS.

"He had been ill," Mrs. Pass explained, "and the doctors having forbidden him to work, I got my husband to hire him for chore work around the house, helping out the maid.

"He was somewhat impulsive at time, on one occasion kissing me in front of a neighbor's daughter. This was against my wishes. Another time when I was ill I had come downstairs. He remonstrated with me, claiming I should have remained in bed, and carried me half way upstairs before I made him put me down.

"He constantly came in and sat on my bed when I was in it and I did the same with him. I saw nothing wrong in that. Once when I was looking over his shoulder when he was reading in bed, the maid saw us. I didn't think anything of it. He and I frequently dressed the baby together.

"HUSBAND IGNORANT."

"He was handy man around the house from December, 1924, until the time I went away with him.

"I was too stylish for my husband. I tried to raise him up to my level but he dragged me down. He was ignorant. The hot weather went to his head.

"The day after the row, Jackson (Jacobson) wis in the house, and asked me for money. I told him I didn't think a woman should lend a man money, but I was going to my mother's, and if he wanted to come along I would pay him.

"We drove all night and, on arrival at Patterson, N. J., I got a room, as my face was swollen from where my husband had struck me. Jackson went to Newark.

"Four or five days later he came to Patterson and said he thought he could get work in Philadelphia. I drove him to that city and while there telephoned my husband. He asked me what I was doing there and, on Jackson's suggestion, as a joke, I said: 'I'm on my honeymoon.' My husband told me not to come back, as he had started suit for divorce.

"We went back to Patterson, and I took Jackson to my mother's home, introducing him under the name of Chapman."

Pass was on the stand earlier.

QUIGLEY GOES ON TRIAL IN RUM CASE

selecting the jury was begun, while outside the spectators that had been unable to get in milled in the corridors.

An imposing array of counsel was in attendance as the venire of prospective jurymen took places in the courtroom of Judge Elisha Brewster and so great was the number of jurors, counsel, defendants and newspaper men that none of the vast audience in the corridors could be admitted.

The defendant group itself constituted the largest number of defendants ever to face a Federal court and William Scharton.

Work of impaneling the jury was about to start when Attorney Feeney went into conference with United States Attorney Harold P. Williams over newspaper stories that witnesses in the case had been approached with bribes and that one witness was offered $3,000 if he would "go on a vacation."

The understanding was that Feeney was attempting, because of the stories, to have Mayor Quigley's trial deferred.

Others on trial on the charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law are:

Police Lieutenant John M. Bartley, Sergeants Walter A. Barden and Edward W. Isbister, Patrolmen Robert McCarthy, John McGreevey, Edward Forbes, David Hicker, Joseph Flynn and Special Officer George Finn, Ernest "Dutch" Henry, Harry Murphy, Richard Carlson, Joseph Henry, Daniel L. Murphy, Eli Weinstein, Frank Goldman, Herman Goldman, William Wall, Samuel Berger, Walter Doyle, Louis Sears, William Lawler, Louis Larkin, Abraham [illegible], James Sullivan, William Geller, Leo Leonard, Samuel Horowitz, Ned O'Keefe, Samuel Sentini.

Following on the heels of the "bribe story" conference came another, engaged in by all counsel and by Judge Brewster.

This session was granted by the court that the various counsel for defendants might have opportunity to present motions and pleas, to be argued upon and decided by the justice in open court.

More than an hour and a half was consumed in the chamber session, after which Judge Brewster declared a recess for two hours.

N. E. PHONE CO.'S EARNINGS 5.6 PER CENT., SAYS JONES

The earnings of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company are at the rate of 5.6 per cent. annually on the average book cost of the property investment, President Matt B. Jones of the company told the directors today at their monthly meeting. He based his figures on the earnings shown during the last quarter of 1925, with the increased rates in operation in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Vermont, and for one month only in Maine and New Hampshire. Net profit, out of which interest and dividends were to be paid, was $3,096,293.46 for the quarter, he reported.

ROXBURY MAN ENDS HIS LIFE BY TAKING GAS

Philip J. Pfeiffer was found dead in his bed at No. 55 Yeoman street, Roxbury, today, a tube running from the wall bracket to his bed telling the tale of tragedy. Medical Examiner Brickley pronounced the death a suicide. Pfeiffer was 54 years old and a widower. No cause for his act was given by his relatives with whom he lived.

Dots & Dashes on Blink as Northern Lights Get Busy

The aurora borealis is undoubtedly a very beautiful phenomenon, but don't try to tell that to a telegraph operator.

The aurora has wrought havoc with transmission between Boston and New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Radio fans first reported the strange force at work in the ether, and experts decided it must be the aurora borealis. Today Philadelphia reported trouble with the keys, and then in quick succession followed Boston, New York, St. Louis and Chicago.

INDICT 61 IN BIG LIQUOR RING BRIBERY

"Race King," Coast Guards, Dry Agents, Aviator Charged

New York, Jan. 26.—Sixty-one defendants, including William V. Dwyer, part owner of the Coney Island race track at Cincinnati and the Mt. Royal track at Montreal, are charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law in one of the three sealed indictments returned January 15 and opened in Federal Court today.

Those indicted include a number of Dwyer's alleged confederates in a $10,000,00 rum ring, said to have been conducted by him, and thirteen members of the United States Coast Guard. The men were arrested in a sweeping raid last year by Federal enforcement officials under Major Walton A. Green of Prohibition Director Lincoln C. Andrews' office.

The indictment charges that the defendants conspired to purchase large quantities of liquors in foreign countries and import them into the United States, operating "rum ring" boats between rum row and the shore.

"The conspirators induced by bribes various members of the coast guard and agents and employes of the treasury to facilitate and aid them," the indictment reads.

The indictment further charges Dwyer and John J. McCambridge with having sent the American vessel William Maloney to sea in the coastwise trade in such an unseaworthy condition that the crew of twelve lost their lives.

Wives and children of these sea victims helped in having the leaders of the syndicate indicted.

The syndicate was responsible for bringing millions of dollars' worth of liquor to this country. It was considered the "backbone of Rum Row."

C. Paul Chartier of St. Pierre, Miquelon, who also was indicted on a conspiracy charge, was described as being head of one of the largest liquor distributing combines in Canada. He is said to have sold liquor to the Dwyer Syndicate, knowing it was intended to be smuggled into the United States.

Also indicted was Edward Caperton of Curtiss Field, Long Island, an aviator, who is alleged to have piloted airplanes out to Rum Row to direct liquor ships in their unloading.

JILTED SUITOR DENIED HEART BALM BY JURY

Salem Swain, Asking $5,000, Was Reimbursed for Expenses, Girl Testifies

Salem, Jan. 26.—Time and all that sort of thing will have to suffice for Theophil Lipsky of Salem in the matter of healing his heart hurts, if any, for a jury in Superior Court today proved not sympathetic at all.

Lipsky sued his former fiancee, Michelena Petroviez of Ipswich, for $5,000 damages, alleging breach of promise, embarrassment, humiliation and then some, in that Michelena threw him down as the bells were being tuned up for the nuptials in November, 1922.

The $5,000 included $400 he said he spent in fluffies and other surroundings for the fair Michelena.

Michelena and her folks testified that Lipsky had wooed fraudulently, the alleged deception being discovered just before the gong clanged for the marital getaway.

Lipsky had been reimbursed, they declared, and had been paid off to the last farthing.

From this old New England Rock a Nation Sprang

YOUR Pilgrim Fathers stepped from Plymouth Rock out into a future unknown; a future beset by hardships and privations which only the glowing purpose of a pioneer could hope to conquer.

At the basis of this purpose was character. And out from the heart of that character there flowed a dauntless courage which turned trees into cabins, a wilderness into cultivated fields, a virgin locality into a humanized community where throbbed the beginning of New England life and industry as we know them today.

Straight through the years this purpose has gone—bursting the barriers of distance—out over deserts, across rivers and mountains—until present-day America, with her hundred and twenty millions of people, stands as an enduring monument to that little band of crusaders who landed at Plymouth on a grim winter's day in 1620.

Into this America, New England has poured her treasures of intellect and education, her spirit of progress, her youth and manhood, her wealth, her principles of government and love of fair play which have helped to make our Nation a haven of refuge and opportunity for the discontented and oppressed from many lands.

And for what she gave, New England has amply received in return. The respect of the world is hers. Her goods are afloat on the seven seas. Her factories are busy. Her farms are welcoming back the sons of fathers who left them to blaze new trails into the vast expanses of South and West.

New England is a good place to live and to work. Energized by a backward glance at her past, aflame with a renewed spirit of achievement, she looks toward the future with confident assurance that its problems will be but further opportunities to test the metal of her steel.

New England Gave You La Touraine

La Touraine Tea and Coffee are numbered among those many typical New England products which, by merit alone, have won their way to a high place in popular favor.

Right through the years has the House of Quinby stood firm in its purpose to guard the integrity of the name La Touraine—to keep it representative of tea and coffee quality that is unvarying and dependable.

And the results of this purpose are evidenced in a demand which has grown to a point where La Touraine is undoubtedly the biggest selling coffee in New England—and where, in the opinion of thousands of people, the name La Touraine stands for the best the world affords in both tea and coffee.

You will find them both on the shelves of upwards of 20,000 leading New England dealers, any one of whom will gladly supply you today with this Incomparable Combination—this certain key to the pleasure and satisfaction which always come with the knowledge that the best is yours to drink and to serve.

No matter how good a radio program may be, it will never reach the ears of the radio listener accurately unless, during the present tests, should pay careful attention the proper receiving equipment is used. It is impossible to place too much stress upon the efficiency of the audio amplifier and loud-speaker, for it is through these two units that success or failure depends.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

Radio fans will witness one of the greatest events tonight in the history of local radio. This takes place at 8 P. M., when WEEI will put the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the air, direct from Symphony Hall. The opening concert will be under the conductorship of Eugene Goosens. These weekly Symphony concerts have been made possible through the generosity of Mr. W. S. Quinby, well-known Boston merchant.

AMERICAN'S STATION GETS PERU IN TEST

Voices and music from South America rewarded the efforts of Leslie F. Barnard and Samuel Curtis, radio experts at the Boston Evening American's listening station in Pembroke last night.

At 11:15 p. m. a faint carrier wave was tuned in. It was so faint and so unsteady that little could be obtained from it, yet there was sufficient evidence to indicate that it was a distant station.

Careful listening, with dials left untouched, brought much satisfaction. [illegible] came the dulcet tones of a beautiful soprano voice started in some [illegible]. The static was very heavy, and it was only with difficulty that the singer could be followed. The number being sung was an unfamiliar one. Then came the voice of the announcer. It sounded like a typical [illegible], only he was talking Spanish. This was very [illegible].

NO QUESTION OF ACCURACY.

Further developments brought on a piano solo. This was [illegible] and sounded something like [illegible]. Then at 11:20 came the reward of the evening. The station took a sudden swing, and coming in with an amazing increase in volume gave the announcement: "[illegible] OAX, Lima, Peru." This was first picked up by Barnard and almost immediately verified by Curtis. Both men were wearing individual headsets. The announcements mentioning "Lima, Peru" were noticed and verified at least three times. There was no question as to their accuracy.

At 11:40 a violin solo was heard. The air was an unfamiliar one, but sounded like a "Gavotte." By consulting the advance programs of OAX, it was discovered that at 11:45 P. M. a violin solo, "Impressions de la Tarde," was scheduled.

OFFICIAL LOG.

A station log was kept during the evening, and a copy is published herewith:

11:00 P. M.—[illegible] watch. [illegible] static very heavy.

11:05 P. M.—WRVA, Richmond, Va., signs off. Announcer [illegible].

11:10 P. M.—Bad code interference noticed around 470 meters.

11:13 P. M.—[illegible] of 250 meters. Woman's [illegible] could be heard. Noticed [illegible] from [illegible].

11:18 P. M.—[illegible] singing with piano accompaniment. Very [illegible].

11:20 P. M.—[illegible] Call letters [illegible] the words "[illegible]." [illegible]

11:25—[illegible] dials [illegible] fierce.

[illegible] Heard him say "Lima, Peru" three [illegible] times.

11:3[illegible]—[illegible]

11:40—Woman singing. Wonderful [illegible] would [illegible] identifying the station.

11:45—Violin solo. Sounds like a "Gavotte," quick time piece. (This came in around 330 meters.)

11:49—This 330-meter station makes an announcement, then fades completely out.

11:51—340 meters. Man singing tenor solo. Piano accompaniment.

11:53—310 meters. Man still singing. Unfamiliar number—sounds like part of an opera.

12:00—270 meters. Woman talking. Various American stations begin to join the DX watch.

12:15—Started for Boston in automobile.

PICK UP S O S

An S O S signal was picked up during the early part of the evening. This was logged at 8:24 P. M. This created a silent condition so far as code was concerned. No code could be heard on either 450 or 600 meters.

At 8:48 P. M., or exactly 24 minutes after the American's operators logged the S O S, WEEI, the Edison station, shut down with the announcement that "They were closing on account of an S O S call."

At 9:[illegible] a station was heard to announce "This is Havana, Cuba, broadcasting an International Test program under the auspices of the Westinghouse Electric Company." While no call letters were logged, it was thought this may have been PWX, broadcasting on 400 meters.

[illegible]

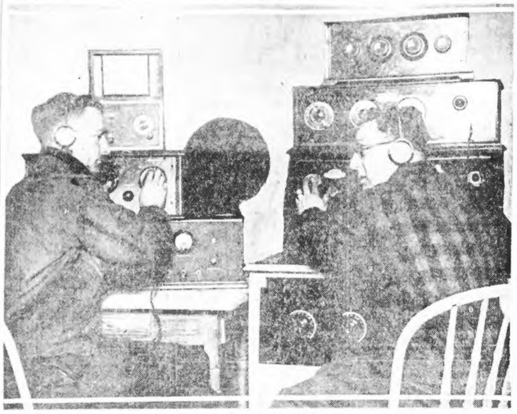
The 120-foot "[illegible]" antenna will be completed for tonight's tests and with it it is expected that still better results will be obtained. "Barney" and "Sam" are hot on the trail.

DX Conditions Last Night

By "THE DOCTOR"

The static was heavy. Fading was also in plain evidence. The usual supply of outside stations was available, although we were listening in at Pembroke—a more advantageous location than I am usually accustomed to. Down here I am impressed by the comparative freedom from regenerative interference. Squeals and squawks can of course be heard, but they are weak and hardly bothersome.

TUNING IN ON LIMA, PERU



This is Samuel Curtis and Leslie F. Barnard, Boston Evening American radio experts as they go into action at the Evening American's special listening station at Pembroke. They logged OAX Lima, Peru, at 11:15 last night, marking success for the first day's efforts in the tests.

RUSSIAN RADIO FANS HEAR U. S. BROADCASTS

Moscow, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Russian radio fans heard America for the first time. Owing to bad atmospheric conditions, reception of speech was unsatisfactory, but the musical part of the program was plainly audible even on two-valve receivers. The whole country now is eagerly listening for further signals from across the Atlantic. Most of the Russian fans are unfamiliar with the English language, but the broadcasting from New York proved entertaining.

BOSTON LINER BATTLES GALE AND DELUGE

Heavy Seas Made at Least One Passenger on Regina Believe End Was Near

Friday night a giant sea swept over the rails of the White Star liner Regina, on the port side, carried away bits of five sections of rail, splintered the windows in several cabin suites and then cascaded through the vessel. For five minutes there was excitement, then an efficient crew got busy.

It was one of the roughest crossings reported by any passenger liner coming into Boston this year. When one is aware that the giants, Leviathan and Aquitania are yet battling the elements, not to mention several ships of smaller class, Captain Smith's landing in Boston is all the more remarkable. Regina had 251 passengers aboard and of the entire list only one, Raymond Savage, a brilliant young English author, suffered any form of injury.

AUTHOR INJURED.

Savage, who for the nonce felt the time had come to approach his maker, received cuts on his knee as he crawled about on the water-covered floor of the chamber of his suite, seeking his glasses. His cuts were trifling, however, and though his room had taken in much water, he regained perfect composure when an army of stewards and others of the ship's crew got rapidly to work.

Regina revealed the blows she received. Boards covered the windows of five rooms on the saloon deck. Bits of rail were missing from place to place. Otherwise the ship was sound and so, too, were her complement of humans. Regina landed 29 cabin passengers here and a number of thirdclass riders. In addition to Savage was F. B. Atwood, United States Vice-Consul at Plymouth, Eng., who came back with Mrs. Atwood and their daughters, Noelle and Maran. They went direct to Fall River and thence to Nantucket to spend Mr. Atwood's four weeks' leave.

ENGULFED BY DELUGE.

Savage said he was asleep about 12:40 Friday night, when suddenly a shower of glass, followed by a deluge of cold water engulfed him. It poured into his chamber, completely covering him. He thought his time had come. Somehow he managed to make the floor, where six to eight inches of water rested. His glasses had been swept to the floor. On hands and knees he sought them and then it was he received his cuts.

Another who felt the force of the giant wave was Mrs. Wesley Taylor of Belfast, Ireland, who was a cabin passenger with her year and a half old son Desmond. Mrs. Taylor and Desmond are headed for Miami, Fla., where Mr. Desmond is doing well in the contracting game now so popular in that thriving community. On the Regina this morning Mrs. Taylor was quite composed with her latest style Irish boots and the prospects of a Winter season neath Florida's smiling skies.

Regina had another big batch of mail from England. She brought in 2,126 bags. After landing it, her passengers and their baggage she steamed out for New York, where it is hoped a landing will be made tomorrow afternoon.

DECLARES AIRCRAFT NEAR LIMIT IN DEVELOPMENT

San Francisco, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—Aircraft soon will reach the limit of development for national defense unless some marvelous invention is given the world, predicted Dr. W. F. Durand, director of the Stanford University laboratory of aerodynamics, before a meeting of the Association of the Army of the United States. Dreams of planes that will carry bombs across the seas and lay towns and cities in ruins were described as chimerical. "The creation of such a plane is practically impossible," he said. "A new way of navigating the air must be discovered and a new type of plane developed before the world will see an airship traveling 4,000 or more miles with a heavy load, drop its bombs and then return."

GIRL OF 16 IS BEING HUNTED BY RADIO

New Bedford, Jan. 26.—A statewide hunt, supplemented by a radio search, was begun today for Jane McKenzie, sixteen, of Buzzard's Bay, who left home last Saturday, according to police, in company with an eighteen-year-old youth. Police traced the girl to East Weymouth. From that place she is believed to have gone to New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. McKenzie enlisted the aid of the police and State constabulary in an effort to find their daughter. Harry McKenzie, a brother, started a radio hunt in New York city, where descriptions of the girl were broadcast.

IRISH BOOTS HELP HER WEATHER GALES

AUTO PLATES 'DISGRACE'

Senator Hennessey of Dorchester today charged that the 1926 automobile number plates are a disgrace to Massachusetts.

"Because of a false idea of economy on the part of the Commission on Administration and Finance," he declared, "cheap paint and convict labor is used in turning the plates out. With less than a month's use these plates have already begun to peel."

He was speaking in favor of his bill allowing the use of municipal buildings for the distribution of number plates.

Senator Moyse of Waltham, a member of the hearing committee, commented that the steel from which the plates are cut is of poor quality, being $4 a ton cheaper than the grade used prior to 1925.

Use the right size "B" battery

The length of time you listen in each day and the size of your "B" batteries in relation to your set determine how long the "B" batteries will last.

Follow these simple rules for "B" battery satisfaction and economy:

On 1 to 3 tubes—Use Eveready No. 772.

On 4 or more tubes — Use the Heavy Duty "B" Batteries, either No. 770, or the even longer-lived Eveready Layerbilt No. 486.

On all but single tube sets—Use a "C" battery.

When these rules are followed, the No. 772 will last for a year or more, and the Heavy Duties for eight months or longer, when listening at the year-round average of two hours a day.

NOTE: In addition to the increased life which an Eveready "C" Battery gives to your "B" batteries, it will add a quality of reception unobtainable without it.

ILLUMINATION IS JUBILEE FEATURE

Among the spectacular features of the Jordan Marsh Diamond Jubilee celebration the vivid decorative electric display on the buildings has attracted unusual attention.

Not only is the display the most pretentious ever attempted in New England, but construction of it was accomplished in record time.

From every angle which gives a view of [illegible] the main building of the Jordan Marsh Company, bounded by Summer, Washington, Chauncy and Avon streets, huge dazzling-white letters flare forth their message: "Diamond Jubilee."

All along the sides of the building on Washington street, and extending well into the side streets, runs a band of gold and crystal lights at approximately the height of the fourth story, and about 10 feet wide. Nearly every foot of this line of fire let drop a stream of light ending in a flashing diamond.

Few of the thousands who have stopped to stare and marvel at this gorgeous display are aware that there are 17 miles of wiring, 1000 feet of spruce furring, painted in the modern method of spraying guns, 13,000 sockets and 13,000 electric lamps, requiring six men five days to unpack and test them.

TWO AUTOISTS HURLED 25 FT. IN SKID CRASH

Stoughton, Jan. 26—One man is dying in Brockton Hospital and another is suffering from brain concussion and a fractured right arm as the result of being thrown twenty-five feet today when the sedan in which they were riding skidded and crashed into a pole with terrific impact on Pearl street, near the Canton line.

Michael Baronski, eighteen, of No. 81 Intervale street, Brockton, is dying. His skull was fractured when thrown through the windshield and his body is covered with bruises. Internal injuries are also feared.

The men were on their way to work from Brockton to Canton where they are employed. The sedan, owned by Baronski's brother, skidded with terrific force. Passing motorists picked up their unconscious forms and took them to the hospital.

Police Chief Peter McGarry of Stoughton is investigating.

'IS ZAT SO?' IS UNREAL BUT VERY FUNNY

Gales of Laughter Greet Presentation of Comedy at Wilbur Theatre

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

THE element of probability holds a very small part of "Is Zat So?" at the Wilbur. The story is remote from anything that might enter into the lives of men and women that even the familiar farces with trick doors and sliding panels stand out as faithful pictures of daily events.

So much for the liberties we take with the drama.

Now to get down to the funniest, fastest and smartest parade of chatter and situation the theatre has enjoyed for seasons—and that's "Is Zat So?" A comedy of wise cracks, of comedy in scintillating epigram, slang of the period and slang yet unknown to the sidewalks and back parlors of Main street—these are the items of interest that sent "Is Zat So?" away upon an exceedingly joyful first night.

A LAUGH PRESCRIPTION

Prize fighters of low order but of quick wit, women of fashion and as mean a [illegible] as ever wore a snug dinner suit made up the order of persons in the play. It was the good old hokum done to a turn and served in just the fashion to throw an audience out of its chairs. It has been many moons and a couple of blithe-one Springs since so much honest laughter has rattled the windows of the Wilbur. One wise crack followed another—they seemed endless. Laughs were piled upon laughs until tears streaked the cheeks of brave men and trickled through miles of feminine powder and rouge.

For the man starving for a laugh, "Is Zat So?" was meat and drink—a feast of rare prescription.

WHIRL OF MERRIMENT.

Out of this performance came two comedians you will remember — Frederick Howard and Harry Tyler. Together as fight manager and fighter coaxed into domestic service because of empty stomachs, they anchored the fun to the centre of the stage. Sentiment had its full fling, morality was preached in new forms of slang and virtue finally rose triumphant through a championship battle.

In a long cast Percy Moore turned in his own familiar villainy. He is always a known quantity in that respect. Dama Sykes played and looked the part of the suffering wife on upper Fifth avenue and Lionel Glenister managed well as the virtuous gentleman friend. Helen Stewart and Gladys Crollus rounded out the remaining activities in agreeable style.

There are no quiet moments at the Wilbur—and zat's so.

SHUBERT—Earl Carroll's Vanities. Musical revue and all that goes with it.

CASTLE SQ.—"Abie's Irish Rose." In which the course of true love has many [illegible].

MAJESTIC—"The Big Parade." An engrossing film romance of the World War.

COPLEY—"The Sport of Kings." Ian Hay's stirring melodrama of the race track.

"ACTS OF GOD" RULED OUT OF GOVERNMENT SUITS

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—"Acts of God" should not interfere with the business of the government, Comptroller General McCarl has ruled in two cases. If Roberts & Company of Texas, with a contract to provide hay for army mules, could have found other hay in districts not affected by the drought, the Comptroller General ruled in one case. In the other he declared the Pacific Machine & [illegible] Company, near Fort Stevens, Ore., should have known wind and rain might arise to delay its work on a steel tank and should have protected the work "in anticipation of the very contingency that happened."

NEW CUSTOMS BUREAU PLANNED BY ANDREWS

Washington, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Legislation to place the customs service of the treasury on a parity with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, thus creating a second great collection agency for the government, has been prepared for submission to Congress. The program calls for establishment of a bureau of customs to replace the present customs division and appointment of a commissioner with wide authority at its head. It was worked out by Assistant Secretary Andrews, after a long study of conditions, in view of complaints by business interests that undue delay was experienced in administration of the tariff laws.

BLUEBEARD SMILES AT ONE IN SEVEN

KOUSSEVITZKY LEADS CONCERT

The second of the Monday night series of Symphony Concerts took place with Mr. Koussevitzky once more at the conductor's desk after being absent for three weeks. He was heartily applauded, and was apparently in excellent spirits.

He led the orchestra in a performance of the Galliard Sonata, arranged by Maximilian Steinberg, which he introduced at the regular series earlier in the year, and also in a rendition of Strauss' "Alpine Symphony," which has likewise been played before. Both pieces were unusually well presented by the orchestra.

The soloist was Jesus Sanroma, pianist of the orchestra. He played Rachmaninoff's second Piano Concerto. In spite of a slight nervousness, which was natural enough, he gave a very finished performance, and was much applauded. Mr. Koussevitzky's support with the orchestra was exceptionally sympathetic. The performance on the whole was a memorable one.

RICH PROGRAM AT ORPHEUM

A program rich in entertainment value is offered at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. A particularly fine photoplay presented Pola Negri in "A Woman of the World." The picture is an up-to-date story with an American setting—a vital, modern love drama, packed with dazzling comedy as well as romance and emotional strength.

Pola's role is an extremely sympathetic one. She has the assistance of a top-notch supporting cast, including Charles Emmett Mack, Holmes Herbert, Chester Conklin and Blanche Mehaffey.

The vaudeville program was also of good proportions. George Morton, the inimitable monologue artist, keeps the audience in an uproar with his satirical chatter.

SHAW REVIVAL AT REPERTORY

George Bernard Shaw—sharpshooter at things as they are—blazes away at some of his favorite targets in "Captain Brassbound's Conversion" at the Repertory Theatre. And the Shavian shots, with force undiminished in the long range of over a quarter of a century from the time of the play's first appearance, hit as deeply into present day affairs and folks as they did in the days of the Spanish War.

The acting honors for the present production go to John Thorn, as the robust Captain, and Agnes Scott, as the managing Lady Cicely—rarest of women, one totally unselfish and with the saving grace of a sense of humor.

EARL STRADBROKE TO MOTOR AROUND U. S.

Melbourne, Jan. 26 (A.P.).—The Governor, Earl Stradbroke, on retiring when he completes his term of office, proposes to return to England by way of the United States.

Earl and Countess Stradbroke, with their son, Viscount Dunwich, who is on a visit here, contemplate sailing for Vancouver the first week of April. The tour through the States will be by motor car, the Earl himself driving.

OLD WEST SEEN IN FILM

Adventure and romance, in the days of the post Civil War period in the Far West, run true to the traditions of the earliest "open range" settlers in the film version of Peter B. Kyne's "The Golden Strain" at the New Boston.

It is a story of brave men, fair women, double-crossing villains and the tribulations of ranch life when that most marauding and troublesome Injun, Geronimo, was at his best in running off herds of livestock, collecting scalps and generally annoying the pioneers. Further, it is a story of bravery lost and bravery regained in one of the far flung army posts; and there's plenty of exciting encounters with the wilful aborigines, but the United States Cavalry are right on the dot for the final victory.

Kenneth Harlan, Madge Bellamy, Ann Pennington and Robert Frazer are the featured players. Shorter screen subjects and a bill of vaudeville round out the program.

THRILLING ACT ON KEITH BILL

Thrills and novelties abound at Keith's this week.

There are half a dozen novelties in the way of song and dance acts, and skits.

One of the most thrilling acts seen in Boston this season is furnished by the Vardels, equilibrists. The closing stunt in this act is a high dive that is breath-taking.

Hal Skelly and an ambitious company furnish much laughter in his skit, "The Chump." This sketch also features some lively dancing numbers.

George Whiting and Sadie Burt fairly "walk away" with the show along comedy lines, and Eva Puck and Sam White proved that they are always welcome.

Olive Thorne and Frank Rose have an amusing act, while the Versatile Trio, singers and instrumentalists, were well received.

Perez and Marguerite scored in several novelty dances and the motion picture end of the bill was enjoyed.

LOEW'S STATE OFFERS WELL ROUNDED BILL

Clever Vaudeville, Good Music and First Class Film Play Given

A bargain bill of no mean quality as vaudeville-movie programs go, awaits you this week at Loew's theatre, a deftly balanced bill spiced and flavored with dainty tidbits that bring the entertainment mighty close to the peak of perfection.

The bill is what the management has styled "our new form of entertainment." Allen White's Collegians, fresh from the New York Hippodrome with a bag of new tricks, capers and jazzy nicknacks and Philip Spitalny's Victor Recording Band share the honors pretty evenly. For the opening number, Mr. Spitalny chose the finale movement of Tchaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, reading it with brilliancy and sympathy.

Milton Cunningham and Hazel Clements, dancing stars of George M. Cohan fame, give play to their nimble talents in an intriguing Spanish dance which Miss Clements embellishes with a grace all her own. Joe Wetzel, tenor soloist, hailing from the Capitol Theatre in New York, makes good use of fetching lighting effects for his song, "Roses of Picardy."

"His Secretary," starring Norma Shearer and Lew Cody, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, while built around an old plot, is tickling in its laugh-provoking qualities. Miss Shearer starts a very ugly stenog, but yields to fashion to win the dapper Mons. Cody and lo we have a ravishingly beautiful vamp. Willard Louis does some pretty clever clowning and pantomime and as a matter of fact robs the lovely Norma and her supporting star of much of the glory.

OLD FIDDLER AT ST. JAMES

Joseph Shippee, 69-year-old New England champion fiddler, who won the title in Providence, is one of the many features offered at the Keith-Albee St. James Theatre this week. Mr. Shippee is the rival of Henry Ford's protege, Mellie Dunham, for the "fiddling championship" of the United States. Mr. Shippee is assisted by his daughter at the piano.

In conjunction with the bill of vaudeville, the feature picture is "When the Door Opened," a melodramatic romance of the Canadian Northwest. James Oliver Curwood's novel suggests the plot.

Week's Features

BENEFIT TONIGHT FOR INJURED BALL PLAYER

Charlestown folk and other admirers of amateur baseball from every part of the city will make pilgrimage tonight to Hibernian Hall, Union street, Charlestown, for the smoker and entertainment of George Driscoll. This youngster's baseball career was cut off suddenly just as major league scouts had begun to centre their eyes on him. He made the run that won the game for the Charlestown team, but the victory cost a fearful price. In his slide George hurt a nerve in his spine and now he is almost wholly paralyzed. At the benefit tonight a host of boxers will show their wares, including Pat McCarthy, Honeyboy Finnegan and others, while professional and amateur talent will fill in between bouts.

GUY MASSEY, WAR SONG COMPOSER, NEAR DEATH

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Guy Massey, who composed "The Prisoner Song" and other war melodies, is critically ill at the Base Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, where he was admitted a few days ago as a Veterans' Bureau patient. Physicians say he cannot live more than a few months. Massey, who twice was cited for bravery in the last war, was an entertainer for the navy and appeared on the vaudeville stage.

Coming Events

Jeanne Eagels in "Rain" will take the stage at the New Pork next Monday.

"Rainbow Rose," a musical comedy, is announced for the Plymouth, starting next Monday.

"Gay Paree," a Continental revue, will move into the Shubert next week.

Irving Berlin's Music Box Revue (fourth edition) will come to the Colonial on Monday, February 8.

Sally O'Neil, in "Mike" is to be the main feature of the program at Loew's State next week.

William Hodge in "The Judge's Husband" will occupy the Plymouth, starting Monday, February 8.

RICH SATIRE ON FILMDOM AT METROPOLITAN

"Bluebeard's Seven Wives" Burlesques Personnel and Mechanics of the Movies

From the fan standpoint, especially, "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" at the Metropolitan, is a film that provides loads of fun, because it deals mainly in "inside stuff" on the whole movie game. And that means that the good old American pastime of "kidding" is indulged in a grand and glorious manner.

The entrance gates of the studio—ordinarily impenetrable for the layman—are flung wide and the audience figuratively walks all over the "lot" as a privileged character, cooly inspects everything and everybody, including the producers, exploitation gentlemen, and even the great director himself—a most august personage whom many will recognize as a counterpart of a really famous movie maker; and they will get a big laugh because the great man is burlesqued in the most amusing manner imaginable.

Barring the interpolation of a bit from "Romeo and Juliet," done for no apparent reason, in regular Shakespearean fashion, and with the exception of one or two "sentimental" episodes strangely out of tune with the generally pervading joshing note, Director Al Santell has turned out the richest satire on the motion picture profession since "Merton of the Movies."

Ben Lyon, as the near-sighted and stuttering youth who, with the aid of the inspired press agent, gets "put over" on an unsuspecting public, as a sheik of great powers, has the heavy burden of the actors. Lois Wilson, as his unsophisticated sweetheart, merely remains handy for Ben to quit the movies flat and settle down to less dangerous pursuits—which he does.

On the Metropolitan stage is a Venetian fantasy, distinguished mostly by some fine tenor singing by Cesare Nesi.

Grand, Inspiring, Says Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller

By VIOLA DAVENPORT FULLER

(Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller.)

UMBERTO GIORDANO seems to have been able to reconcile the naturalistic tendencies of the modern school of Italian opera thought with the classicism of the Gluck Mozart period. This particularly emphasizes itself in "Andrea Chenier," the tragic opera based more or less accurately upon the life of the French poet of the Revolution.

[illegible] tenor and baritone, the [illegible] drama is able to [illegible] a [illegible] of exquisite [illegible] in the first act without apparent incongruity. Quickly the ragged hordes are thrust from the Coigny salon, and the aristocratic [illegible] festivities.

The varying emotions of Gerard, [illegible] and ultimate death judge of Chenier, were admirably portrayed by Cesare Formichi, sterling artist of the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

Claudia Muzio carried fervor in her trying role of Maddalena. Her voice, one of extraordinary sweetness, alternately [illegible] and thrilled the first night audience. Her dramatic interpretation was [illegible] beyond a mere piece of acting. It was a [illegible] portrayal of moving force, with the personality of the singing actress completely under subjection.

Charles Marshall, robust tenor of the Chicago company, new to Boston in the role of Chenier, fully lived up to his past achievements in such roles as Rhadames, Ezio and others more familiar to us.

Chorus, ballet and staging were of the expected high standard that Chicago has set for itself. Maestro Polacco conducted with his usual skill, producing fine orchestral effects, and coordinating the entire performance.

The choice of "Andrea Chenier" was a [illegible] for the opening of the season, as was evidenced by repeated recalls of singers and conductor.

How altogether delightful it was to see the Opera House used for the purpose for which it was built by Eben Jordan.

I would indulge the wish (although this is hardly the place for it) that our beautiful Opera House might be used over a constantly lengthening period for Opera. It was all very grand and inspiring.

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. Both of them work for Dexter & Co., big Congress street bond firm

Mary Rose is secretary to JOHN MANNERS, the sales manager, and is in love with him. He is engaged to an heiress DORIS HINIG. Because of her feeling for him, Mary Rose repeatedly refuses to marry TOM FITZROY, a young doctor.

Flossie, Mary Rose discovers, is carrying on a secret love affair with the head of the concern, HILARY DEXTER, although she's engaged to his secretary, SAM JESSUP. And she tells the horrified Mary Rose that Dexter would love to divorce his wife and marry her.

"I am going to make him get down on his [illegible] [illegible] at I crawl before he can get [illegible] with me," said Flossie after reading the no[illegible]

Manners rouses the jealousy of Doris Hinig when he takes Mary Rose home to meet his invalid mother. Finally he tells Mary Rose that he loves her and always will, no matter whom he marries

The two sisters quarrel and Flossie gets even by telling Manners that Mary Rose is just "kidding" him when she says she loves him, and is really in love with Tom Fitzroy. Manners believes the lie, and Mary Rose wonders at his sudden coldness toward her. When she goes to read to his mother he makes a point of being away from home.

Mrs. Dexter finds Flossie's vanity case in her husband's car and when she finds Mary Rose taking dictation from him in his office, she accuses her of having been joy riding with Dexter. The door of the office is open, and Mary Rose realizes that the whole office force is "listening in." Flossie begs Mary Rose not to let any one know that it was she who was with Dexter, because she's afraid Sam Jessup won't marry her if he finds it out. So Mary Rose bears Flossie's blame. The girls at the office shun her, and she decides to get a new job.

"Look here, Floss," she said to her one morning when the two of them were dressing, "when are you and Sam going to be married?"

Flossie answered with a shrug of her little naked shoulders, and went on combing the shimmering tangle of curls on her [illegible] head. "Search me!" she said carelessly. "Sam says not before Christmas, anyway—"

"If he says that it's because you've talked him into it!" Mary Rose replied sharply. She knew that Sam was wild to have Flossie for his wife, and would have married her months ago if she had let him

"You're not being fair to me," she went on. "You told me that if I'd say nothing and let Sam think I'd been running around with your friend Dexter, you'd get married right away—"

Flossie turned on her suddenly, with her eyes blazing. "Well, why should I get married right away to please you?" she snipped off her words. "What makes you think you can run my life to suit yourself?"

Mary Rose seemed to think this over for a minute. "Somebody's got to run it for you," she said presently. "We haven't any father and mother doesn't know any more about the world than a baby." She stopped and Flossie finished the thought for her.

Flossie Defiant

"And you think that if you don't make me marry Sam, I'll go to the dogs, don't you?" She swung her yellow head from side to side as she spoke. "Well, then, let me tell you something! I'm not such a fool as

Detroit, Jan. 26.—Mrs Dorothy Meinecke was recuperating today from 16½ hours of consecutive bowling, during which she completed 130 games, tumbling 21,668 pins for an average score of 166 7 13.

The feat established a new endurance record for women, Mrs. Meinecke breaking her own old mark of 100 games, set last year. Her only nourishment was chocolate bars and water.

Pete, the pinboy, who refused to quit until she did, is estimated to have lifted 40½ tons of pins.

NO MANAGER in baseball, unless it be Connie Mack, has had greater good fortune in finding young stars than John McGraw. Mac's average has been about one in twelve —and that's mighty good. Frisch, Greenfield, Jackson, Lindstrom—these are a few of the present day Giants who have brought joy to Mac's heart.

Miller Huggins hasn't done so well. Benny Bengough, Lou Gehrig and Earl Coombs represent the sum total of his "finds" among the present team members.

But opposite Huggins' name you can write one other. That's Rogers Hornsby. Huggins persuaded the St. Louis club to spend $500 on Hornsby at a time when $500 was a fortune. They didn't want to do it. They thought it was too much money. But Huggins persisted and Hornsby came to the Cardinals.

One Hornsby during a lifetime is about all a manager can hope for. It's like one Mathewson or one Johnson. That one "find" wipes the slate clean for all other failures.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THAT FREEDOM

By Marie Luttrell

HOW often in quarrels that became daily occurrences he had ex[illegible] passionately:

"You are always threatening me with divorce. Why don't you [illegible] I'm sick of mat[illegible] I'm tired to death of being henpecked and nagged and worried by a woman I wish to God I had never seen."

And her replies equally venom[illegible] kept the fire burning and [illegible] till the crisis came. She [illegible] charges of cruel and inhuman treatment and asked for an absolute divorce with $3[illegible] a month alimony. They were well known people in the community and when Kate Bignal made the rounds of the newspaper offices asking that notices relating to her case be kept out of print because of her two children, almost grown, [illegible] to suppress them.

Bob Bignal had changed his mind about contesting the suit, for he engaged one of the shrewdest lawyers in the city and fought every charge. And in a sordid court room with a dozen or two people whom they had never before seen, they faced each other in the effort to dissolve a partnership in which they had invested twenty years, the best years of their lives.

The judge took the case under advisement and the following day sent for the lawyers on both sides, giving her a final decree but cutting her alimony to half the sum she had named. Bob Bignal would support his children [illegible] court room, law or no law, [illegible] which he had longed.

He had always risen early on Sunday mornings and pottered about the house [illegible] ing over the shrubs [illegible] in the garden. He always washed out the bird bath and fed the gold fish in the pool. He loved that little garden.

On the first Sunday after his divorce, he wakened early.

He was waking very early every morning after a restless night. But that was due to the fact that he had changed his living quarters, was sleeping in a strange bed. He was sure that he would soon be over all that. He was stopping at a hotel so he had his breakfast and the morning papers sent up to him. The day seemed interminable.

His daughter and son dutifully called, but he was conscious of a restraint in their manner. The boy, younger than the girl, forgot the coaching his sister had evidently given him on the way, and exclaimed heatedly: "It doesn't seem right around home without you. Fathers belong at home as much as mothers. You didn't love us much or you wouldn't have let mother go to court. You could have stopped her. I hate courts. I hate laws. A fellow's just naturally ashamed when his home is busted up. What if you and mother did [illegible] a little? Every family has scabbles."

Cries a Lot

Bob Bignal thought of the boy's words long after he had gone back "to try to make mother eat a little. She cries a lot. I think it's sort of silly long as you didn't want to stay at home."

He dreaded meeting his former wife, but when one day he met her in a book store she nodded in friendly fashion and then was gone before he could gather his wits together and speak to her. She looked thinner. Tired. He went down to the bank and transferred an extra hundred dollars to her account. Law or no law, he didn't want her to have to worry about keeping her home and herself. He had made generous allowances to both of the children so that they could give to her. But suppose they didn't think of that? They were selfish, perhaps. All children were.

One Saturday afternoon he dropped into a movie. A man and his wife sat just back of him. They were arguing a little. Finally they began to snap at each other. The argument was becoming a quarrel. It made Bob Bignal think of himself and his own wife. Then he heard a little sniffling sound. Afterwards the man's voice, "Hush, honey, I was just joking. The trouble with everybody is that they have no sense of humor. When I get hateful you ought to treat me like you do Junior. Just to be sorry for me because I'm such a fool. And when you get snippy with me, I ought to treat you like we both treat sister.

No Parting.

"Now, what would we do without each other. I wouldn't wake up and miss your mop of curls beside me on the pillow for all of Rockefeller's millions. Honest! Look at that dunce of a fellow on the screen! He's letting his wife leave him. A preacher's words didn't really marry you and me and no fool judge can say a mouthful and part us. I'm telling you the truth."

Bob Bignal rose hurriedly and left. Everywhere he turned, that freedom for which he had longed became chains, heavy, linked chains, binding him to far deeper sorrow and greater travail of spirit than he had ever known. And he missed his children! True, they went to the movies with him occasionally but they were always in a hurry to get home to mother before dark. They didn't like to leave her alone when night came on. Did they love her better than they loved him? He increased their allowances, far beyond his agreement with them. They thanked him perfunctorily. Finally he could stand it no longer and questioned them.

Didn't they love him any more?

Junior, as usual, was spokesman. He replied quickly, without any obvious effort to think twice before he answered. "Well, you left home! Left us!"

"But your mother filed charges against me, was suing me for divorce. I had to leave," he defended.

Junior shifted uncomfortably. "Oh, No," he said. "Every time you got angry with mother, you yelled for freedom. I remember. Women are sensitive, always thinking their husbands are likely to fall in love with somebody else. You know it! Now, you're free! And in a year or two, sis will get married and I'll get a job and you'll be rid of us, too."

"Rid of you?" Bob Bignal's voice broke over the words. "Why, you're my son and my daughter. You'll always be my children, just as you are your mother's."

Not the Same

Junior shook his head. "It's not the same. Mother needs us. All women are temperamental. Cry easy. Get mad and make up in a hurry. A man oughtn't to get mad at his own women folks. Just take care of them until they come round."

Philosophy at sixteen!

"They stay in a house a lot and worry about curtains and meals and flower pots and things like that. Why, when my wife gets peeved at me, I'm not going to quarrel like you did. I wouldn't break up a home for my kids—" His voice was husky. He had lost a[illegible] cocksureness that is a part of all youth. "Hang it all, Dad, we miss you." Then he bolted and his sister ran after him.

Lord Bulwer Lytton never wrote a better love letter than Bob Bignal wrote to his former wife that night. Although he knew that she was partially to blame for their separation, he remembered Junior's wise philosophy that women folks are made to be taken care of, until they come round. He quoted words that he had heard from the lips of an unknown man in a picture show. "A preacher's words didn't really marry you and me, and no fool judge can say a mouthful and part us."

That freedom he had longed for and demanded, he told her, was dust and ashes. He wanted her more than anything else in the world. He wanted to be part of that home that he had helped to create and for which he wished to be happily responsible until he died.

Was Persistent

And when at first she was stubborn, still smarting under the hurt that he had allowed her to go a separate way from him, he was persistent.

So, after a winter of mutual discontent, when spring came round, there was a wedding in the wide living room of the home he had helped to build and there were flowers from his own garden to decorate mantel and tables with fresh beauty.

The two witnesses were wet-eyed children, almost grown, who were to profit by suffering in their parents' temporary shipwreck and who had learned the way to sail their own matrimonial barks, when they put out to sea some day, with patience and understanding as well as love.

British control of raw rubber is working a terrific hardship on the American public.

It is said that Florida real estate, for instance, is almost out of sight due to the high cost of rubber boots for salesmen.

* * *

Almost out of sight is right.

* * *

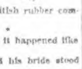
By the way, there's at least one frank Florida real estater. He advertises "Homesites in Winter Haven—the City of 100 Lakes."

* * *

One disgruntled Iowan is very embittered against Florida real estaters. He says they've fixed it so the excursion trains come in as the tide goes out.

* * *

WHO'S WHO AND WOT OF IT



This is Congressman Guttapercha MacMcIntire, who is drafting a constitutional amendment abolishing hamburger sandwiches as a protest against the British rubber combine.

Arthur Kay says it happened like this:

Irving Berlin and his bride stood at the altar.

Parson—"Do you take this woman for your wedded wife?"

Mr. Berlin—"Jazz."

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

Up a long, lazy river we sailed—far up in the interior of the Malay Peninsula, that great peninsula which juts out from Asia south of China and east of India.

That night we landed and camped in the woods.

Early next morning we were up and dressed and on our way into the jungle.

Toward noon Bunny came tearing back to us from a very thick part of the jungle which we were exploring, held up his hand as if he were a policeman stopping traffic and said, "sh."

We "shushed" promptly and on our toes followed Bunny.

For a little distance he daintily picked his way over the ground. Then he halted and pointed to the ground.

There almost at our feet was the strangest little animal. He was just about the size of a rabbit as far as his body went, but he had long, slender little legs and cloven feet.

He wasn't a fraction over seven inches tall and had tusks.

"If he had antlers I'd say he was a deer," I whispered to Bunny.

But I made a mistake whispering. Because the little fellow heard me. With a great, graceful leap he whirled into the air and before we knew it was hanging to the limb of a tree by his tusks and never moving a muscle!

"He is a deer—a mouse deer."

"But what is he doing now?" I asked.

"Pretending he's fruit," laughed Bunny. "They do that when a tiger or jaguar [illegible] people, either, for that matter. Fried deer is a great dish among the natives here."

"I wonder what he thinks he is," laughed Bobby, "an orange or a banana?"

Bunny started whistling, "Yes, we have no bananas." It was a soft little whistle, under his whiskers, and as he led us into the thicket he said something about being more practical than whiskers.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

There is no necessity for proving the existence of light.

* * *

To be slow in granting a favor is to show unwillingness. Even to be slow in desiring to grant it is evidence of unwillingness.

* * *

There is only one thing worth minding, and that is to be true and just, and to show charity, even to the untrue and the unjust.

* * *

There is always victory where there is unanimity.

* * *

There is nothing the body suffers that the soul may not profit by.

* * *

A short life is given us by nature, but the memory of a well-spent life is eternal.

* * *

* * *

A great sorrow is a great repose and you will come out from your grief stronger than when you entered it.

* * *

The greatest cleverness of the least clever people is to know how to submit to the good guidance of other people.

* * *

Mankind are always happier for having been happy, so that if you make them happy now, you make them happy twenty years hence by the memory of it.

* * *

It is the sweet home-feeling, the settled repose of affection in the domestic scene, that is, after all, the parent of the steadiest virtues and purest enjoyments.

* * *

To appear an honest man it is necessary to be one.

* * *

Rather win honor than honors; rather have genius than wealth; rather make your name than inherit it.

* * *

A small present may be the testimony of a great love.

* * *

Truth gives wings to strength.

ELECTRICITY TO AID FARMS, SAYS TRIPP

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Gen. Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., formerly of Boston and Hingham, foresees in extended use of electricity the salvation of the farm. Though only about 2 per cent of the farms of the United States are at present receiving electric power, agriculture will not remain the only outsider in a power-driven world, General Tripp declares.

Gen. Guy E. Tripp

* * *

"If the majority of our farmers should adopt the general use of electric power on the farms, it would not be an extravagance which they could not afford. It would tend to improve and develop the man himself that out of the additional [illegible] there would arise a profit from the greater alertness and efficiency," says Gen. Tripp.

* * *

"Better tools make better workers. It is human nature [illegible] to use a tool until it becomes worn rather than [illegible] whereas a [illegible] on a [illegible] greater [illegible] the same.

* * *

"The life of the farmer's wife, through the use of [illegible] appliances and other conveniences, would be emancipated and [illegible] either increase or decrease the family. Better living conditions on the farm would [illegible] to retain efficient labor during the [illegible] year time.

* * *

"The most important thing, however, is to [illegible] people [illegible] of the United States in use and [illegible] use of modern [illegible] and [illegible] importance of [illegible] in stimulating them to take a more active interest in the movement of industrial [illegible] and I venture to hope has yet [illegible]."

J. Morris Meredith will retire from the firm of Meredith & Grew. The business will be continued under the same firm name by Edward W. Grew, Henry Whitmore, Morton Wigglesworth and Arthur B. Brooks as partners.

I understand President Jordan the other day sent out another warning for the shorts to cover. On previous similar warning the issue advanced about 10 points. Unusual strength and activity in Jordan Motor Car Co. common has been accompanied by rumors of pending merger developments in which Dodge Bros. and Hudson are prominently mentioned. In usually well informed quarters, however, the move is looked upon as a drive against shorts in this issue, which has been accentuated by a small floating supply. It is estimated that not more than 20,000 shares constitute the floating supply, out of a total stock issue of 170,000 shares of Jordan common.

* * *

Trading last week was 53,000 shares, with an advance of over three points, while trading in three hours this morning exceeded 20,000 shares. Officials report the company's business in a satisfactory condition, with production around 60 to 65 cars a day. Final earnings figures for 1925 will not be available for some weeks, but it is estimated that net after all charges closely approximated earnings in 1924 when the company earned $4 a share on stock.

ARLINGTON MILLS HAS INCREASE IN DEFICIT

Statement of Arlington Mills for year ended Nov. 30, 1925, the first woolen mill report available, shows net earnings before charges of $180,663 compared with $1,135,610 in 1924. The net loss after all charges was $98,[illegible] and the deficit after dividends $1,[illegible] as compared with a deficit the previous year of $156,295. There was an increase in reserves, however, of $142,161, making the net increase in surplus and reserves $[illegible].

As of November 30, 1925, net current assets totaled $[illegible] as compared with $9,50[illegible] the year before.

The War Veterans Know

They Should Help Stop the World Court-League of Nations Nonsense

All army men that crossed the ocean and know how people in Europe feel toward this country, should realize what stupidity it would be to put this nation in the League of Nations, or at the mercy of a World Court, are invited to read what follows, in large type. It is the wording of a resolution drawn up and sent to Washington from Detroit by the Wayne Council of the American Legion.

> "We, who offered ourselves to our country in its time of need, believe the road to world peace lies in adherence to the policy of remaining aloof from entangling alliances . . . we believe that entrance into the World Court would be contrary to the interests of this country, as well as contrary to the cause of world peace."

Other American Legion posts have expressed similar opinions, denouncing the effort to subordinate this country to the decisions of a foreign court, and gradually, through the World Court, to force the United States into the League of Nations and make it subject to the control of the League of Nations.

This country is big enough to take care of itself. Its courts are well able to decide matters that affect the United States.

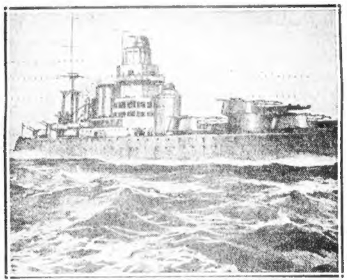
The sentimental, mushy idiocy and the timidity that impel certain Americans to disregard the national traditions, the advice of Washington and the nation's welfare are hard to understand.

Men that were in the Army know what war means. They gave up their comfort and their time, and they know that the best way for this country to keep out of war is to KEEP OUT OF EUROPE.

And that means to keep out of the World Court and League of Nations, keep the affairs that concern the United States beyond the reach of the people of Europe, of the League of Nations, and out of the reach of a World Court that would be packed ten to one against the United States.

THEY Build, WE Junk

This Section of a New British Battleship May Interest You



This is a giant battleship, "The Rodney," called by the British "Our latest and greatest battleship."

You remember when Balfour and other Britishers, real statesmen, not provincial politicians like our breed, came here for that famous Washington conference, and how they persuaded poor, silly representatives of Uncle Sam that the thing to do was to get rid of battleships and have lovely peace on earth.

Our Washington dodos were much excited, flattered to have the British come here and talk to them, and almost before the British could tell what they wanted, the poor fools that represented this country volunteered to destroy our battleships, including some that were not yet completed, considered the last word in fighting craft. Hundreds of millions of money spent by the American people were junked. And now the British, who have brains, go ahead gaily building battleships, and this is a sample of their latest production, just launched, to protect British trade and help make a monkey of Uncle Sam, if that should be necessary.

This fine ship, of 35,000 tons displacement, carries nine sixteen-inch guns, six six-inch guns on each side and a great array of "anti-aircraft weapons."

In that word, "anti-aircraft," resides the comfort of the situation.

We were triple-plated idiots, so far as diplomacy was concerned, when we destroyed our battleships to oblige England, France and Japan, who didn't have money enough to keep up with us. The fox, with his tail cut off, had a perfect success when he came over to this country and said, "Cut off your tail also, please."

But there is some comfort in the thought that, after all, battleships don't matter MUCH now, so far as the United States is concerned.

England must have warships, because she must send them out to protect her great fleet on the surface. We haven't any fleet to speak of, although we have a few souvenirs of our 100 per cent. war profiteers, run at a loss.

We could destroy anybody's battleships if we had a good fleet of airplanes such as the French possess. You can be sure that the French high command smiles when it sees this picture of a British battleship. It knows what a couple of bombs would do to the gigantic steel turrets rising above the deck of this ship.

But we JUNKED our battleships, and we haven't any airships, EITHER.

If there is anywhere on earth a really large, handsome, heavily plated, embossed booby prize, it ought to be handed on a gold plate to good old Uncle Sam's "statesmen."

THE TIPPING OCEANS AT PANAMA

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"Are the Atlantic Ocean and the Pacific Ocean on the same level at the Panama Canal, and are the tides at the same time on both oceans at that point? Are there tides in the Arctic and Antarctic Oceans?—A. R.

IF it were not for the tides and winds—probably no difference in the sea level on the two sides of the Isthmus of Panama would exist. In fact, however, a measureable difference does exist.

In 1919, the chief hydrographer of the Panama Canal found that the mean sea level at the Pacific entrance was approximately 0.7 of a foot, or say nearly eight and a half inches higher than at the Atlantic entrance. This difference was calculated from tidal observations and reference to a line of precise levels run in 1908.

Not only the tides, but also the winds, have a notable influence upon the level of the sea, as measured along coasts. The effect of the winds varies at different seasons in accordance with their prevailing direction, which changes with the season. It has been found that this influence is very marked in the bay of Panama.

Tides Warm.

As to the tides, so far are they from being of the same height, or occurring at the same time, on both sides of the Isthmus that the mean range at the Pacific entrance to the canal is 12.5 feet, while that at the Atlantic entrance is only 0.9 of a foot.

The high tide on the Pacific side occurs near the time when the tide is at its mean level on the Atlantic side. The mean difference of sea level at the two ends of the canal being, as stated, 0.7 of a foot, the actual difference of level when the tide attains its average high point on the Pacific side is about seven feet, i. e., the water stands seven feet higher at Balboa (the Pacific end) than at Colon (the Atlantic end). But at extreme high tide at Balboa the water may be as much as eleven feet higher on the Pacific side. At low tide on the Pacific side the Atlantic water stands higher than the Pacific. I am indebted for these figures to the Director of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, E. Lester Jones.

You may be surprised that there should be so much difference of time between the arrival of the daily tide waves at places separated only by the narrow Isthmus, that connects North and South America like a neck stretched perilously near to breaking. And indeed, it is not practicable in a short article to give you more than a few hints at the explanation.

The fundamental consideration is that the course of the main tide waves is interrupted by the interposition of continents in the normal line of progression, which is East and West. The "parent wave" is assumed to start in the Pacific ocean, a relatively short distance west of the South American coast. A part of it runs backward around Cape Horn, and combines with a tide in the Atlantic. But no description by words alone can make these things clear. Try to get hold of a "co-tidal map," and study it.

There is a very good one in Prof. Young's "Manual of Astronomy." There you will see at a glance how complicated a problem it is to follow the course of the tidal crests which run across the oceans, three or four being in the running at the same time, and all being diverted from their natural course, that of chasing the nearest way, after the moon.

Greater Range

Yes, there are tides in the polar oceans. In the midst of the oceans the average range of the tides is between three and four feet. But in bays and gulfs, on the shores of continents, where the water is driven into narrowing channels, the range is often several times greater.

The Basin of Minas at the head of the long Bay of Fundy is world-famous for its tides, which ordinarily reach a height of 70 feet, and sometimes, it is said, 100. Even lakes have tides. At Chicago there is a tide in Lake Michigan, whose average height is, I believe, not much less than two inches. In the Mediterranean sea, the average height attained is about a foot-and-a-half, but at places along the coast it amounts to [illegible] of four feet.

CHOOSE COMPANIONS NEAR YOUR OWN AGE

Why don't you choose companions near your own age?

Don't you see how foolish you, a middle-aged man or woman, appear to others when seen always with young girls or youths not half your age?

You may feel as young as you ever did, but you do not look it.

No matter how well preserved you are, there are bound to be telltale lines in your face which at times show more than at others.

When one affects youth there is always an exaggerated effort at youthful manners and conversation.

Unless you have seen December trying to be a companion to May you do not realize how ridiculous it can be.

It may be that it is merely young men that you like to associate with. But you will never take your place as a man of well-balanced personality unless you make yourself a settled and substantial force in your community.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson

WE'VE junked old Jupiter and Mars. Thor and Osiris have gone their way. Pan is a name for children's fairy tales, and Vulcan the title for a medium heavy oil.

The gods have passed out with the bogey man.

But one remains: The great god, Public Opinion.

"Public opinion!" How we worship at its pagan shrine! Show me the person who doesn't tremble at its name!

We honestly believe that it is the precious precipitate of all men's wisdom, caution, humor, decency and common sense. It is the court of last appeal in all debates. We quote it to defend our favorite prejudices or fads, or to annihilate the other fellow's.

And now at last comes an earth-born human with courage enough to attack Public Opinion in loud, rude terms.

He is O. Victor Limerick, M.D., director of pharmacology, Brooklyn Diagnostic Institute, New York, and he has written a treatise called, "The Psychology of the Tobaccophobe."

Dr. Limerick doesn't care whether we smoke or not, but he objects to the unscientific theories which are generally advanced as arguments against smoking, and he has a profound contempt for the methods of Public Opinion. He says:

"Popular opinion is not the crystallization of independent and self-relying inquiry and meditation; on the contrary, it is the scum of mass reaction.

"It is composed, in large part, of beliefs that cannot endure casual scrutiny, much less the rigorous tests of enlightened criticism. It is thick with fossilized misconceptions held in suspension by stultifying tradition. It contains the emotionalisms of the neurotic, the prejudices of the illiterate, the fantasies of the feeble-minded, and the hallucinations of the common drunk."

Does that seem too drastic a statement to you? Then do a little analysis for yourself. How much sound truth and justice do you find in public opinion concerning:

Capital punishment?
Divorces?
The unwritten law?
Illegitimate children?
The impeccability of mothers?
The younger generation?

And any other little matters that may occur to you?

And after all, why should you with your perfectly good brain, depend on Homo Sapiens, Inc., to do your thinking for you? Can't you form your own opinions? Sure you can. Then why not start right now?

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

SINCE several large banks have advocated clean currency, thousands of families are sending their money to the laundry.

BUT the poor people have to wash their nickels and dimes at home.

CAN you imagine hanging three dollars and seventy-five cents worth of silver out on the line?

THIS is the only time that husbands are willing to bring in the laundry.

RICH families are sending their currency to the dry cleaners. It costs then fifty cents to get a dollar bill sponged and pressed.

ONE woman tried to save money by sending her greenbacks to the wet wash.

SHE sent ninety-four dollars and when they returned it, it had shrunk to seventy-five.

THREE of the ten dollar bills had buttons sewed on them.

SHE kicked because they hadn't put any starch in the quarters.

NOT only that, but they returned thirty-two nickels that weren't ironed.

THERE was still some dandruff left on the Indian's scalp.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "FOR THOSE WHO SIGH"

EVERY WOMAN dreams of Being made PERFECT
LOVE TO, before she dies.
And why NOT?
Out of ALL the MILLIONS
Of MEN, it is SURELY not
TOO MUCH to ask for
Just ONE single perfect man.
Yet, married or single, many
Women find that the men they
Meet do NOT measure up.
And with the passing of
Time, the women become too
HARD mentally, or too SOFT
Physically, and the sun
Finally sets on their chances
BECAUSE—they lacked
PERSPECTIVE.
If they were POOR and
DREAMED OF MONEY,
Would money COME?
If they wanted a JOB
And did not TRAIN for
It, would they GET IT?
WOMEN who WANT LOVE
Must LOVE THEMSELVES
Enough to TAKE CARE of Themselves, and THEN they
Must love EVERYONE
A LITTLE in case
And, in ANY case, then
They are BECOMING
LOVABLE, which is much
RARER THAN IT SOUNDS.

LOCARNO PACT HELP TO EUROPE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

RECENTLY in London they had a very impressive ceremony.

Delegates from the various countries, including Mr. Chamberlain from Great Britain, Mr. Briand from France, Mr. Stressemann and Mr. Luther from Germany, Mr. Vandervelde from Belgium, Count Scialoia from Italy, Mr. Skarzynski from Poland, and Mr. Benes from Czecho-Slovakia, sat around the table and signed a paper. The gentlemen from Germany, coming first in alphabetical order, according to the French language, Germany in French being Allemande, signed first, and the rest of them in proper order.

It was a very imposing occasion and was properly photographed by the moving picture cameras.

It is an act that will probably have great effect upon Europe.

Whatever may be the opinion in the United States about joining in a European deal there is no difference of opinion as to the advisability of the various nations of Europe getting together. They can certainly do much more good in concert than they can do in competing with each other.

A Frenchman some time ago suggested that all customs barriers be done away with in Europe. Whatever may be our opinion of the advantages of high tariff we must all agree that Europe with its various offensive tariffs is handicapped in its competition with America, which has no internal tariffs.

There is no reason why Europe should not act as a unity and as the United States of Europe any more than there is why the various States of this country should not co-operate in one national government.

Languages and customs do not afford a sufficiently valid reason for continued separation.

The Locarno Pact will doubtless be a great step in advance for Europe.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

ALL my life, I have prayed Heaven to make me good and sweet and beautiful—but I am beginning to wish that I had prayed, instead, for that priceless boon, a BAD TEMPER!

Helen Rowland

* * *

Patience and self-sacrifice may make everybody love you—but there is nothing like a high, quick, vicious, BAD TEMPER! to keep everybody side-stepping.

* * *

After all, what reward do sweet-tempered people get in this life? Just the "little burnt-end" of the cake—the crumbs, the errands, the uncomfortable chairs—and the bills!

* * *

It is the human Firecracker whom the waiters rush to serve. It is HE, who always gets the hot soup, the tenderloin of the steak and the heart of the salad!

* * *

It is the Touchy Tyrant, for whom the family hurries up the dinner, keeps the breakfast waiting, and tiptoes around the house on Sunday morning.

Nobody thinks of unfolding his newspaper before he has looked at it; nobody dreams of taking his favorite chair or borrowing his golf-sticks, or laying profane hands on his personal belongings.

* * *

His wife is always "utterly devoted" to him. (Oh, yes, she is!)

* * *

She would as soon think of rearranging his papers or touching his razor as of cutting her own throat. She would as soon think of questioning his opinion or disputing his judgment as of dropping a match in the gasoline tank.

* * *

His lightest word is a royal command. And if, by any chance, he happens to be in a good humor, everybody dances around as joyously as though the Eighteenth Amendment had been repealed.

* * *

But, alas for the kind, easy-going, considerate, unselfish man! Why should anybody pay any attention to him? He'll stand for anything!

* * *

When the maid forgets to bring him fresh towels, he meekly wipes his face on a clean handkerchief instead of ringing for the manager.
